LAFFLETT MEANS WAR, SAYS FISH

Both the House and Senate wrestled with the Lease-Lend Bill today in the Administration's effort to speed the measure to enactment. The Senate foreign relations committee heard witnesses in opposition. In the House, the debate began over the bill which is expected to be hurried through in less than a week.

SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Philip F. LaFollette, former governor of Wisconsin, testified today that Edouard Daladier, former French premier, had told him in 1939 that France expected the United States to aid it "with money, materials and men."

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in opposition to the administration's aid-to-Britain bill, LaFollette said he had called on Daladier in March, 1939, and "asked him just what aid they expected from us."

"He replied without a moment's hesitation," the witness recounted, "that they expected money, materials and men. And he said that 'we are going to need them and expect them soon.'"

Senator Johnson (R.) of California, asked whether "the French expectations have been justified by events."

SEES MANDATE IN BILL

"The money and materials are in this (British aid) bill," LaFollette replied, "and I have no hesitancy in saying that the President would be justified in regarding this legislation, not as an authorization, but as a mandate to carry out the full implications of entrance into war."

Previously LaFollette had told the committee that the legislation would "rest in one man the decision over peace or war in this country."

He declared that the bill also "defines weapons of war so broadly as to include virtually every piece of property in this country," and "allows the President to acquire this property and dispose of it to foreign countries on any terms he sees fit."

Sen. Connally (D.) of Texas asked LaFollette whether he had made any reply to Daladier's statement in 1939 and the former Governor replied negatively.

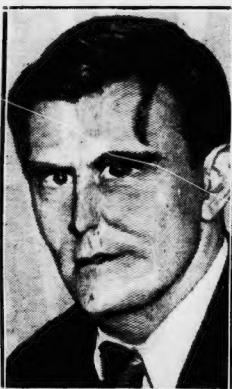

"Then it was a sort of a unilateral conversation," Connally declared.

Under further questioning, LaFollette said he had not called on Hitler when he was in Europe in 1939 because he believed he might be photographed with the German leader and "that the pictures later might be used for an accusation that I was an appeaser."

BLASTS FIRESIDE CHAT

Questioned by Senator Connally about his reference to a "mandate" for participation in war, LaFollette said he thought that "there is no alternative to war in the light of the forty-ninth paragraph of the President's fireside chat in which he announced in unequivocal language that it was the policy of the United States to supply

JOHN G. WINANT

British Reported Against Winant

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Evening Bulletin, in a story from its Washington bureau, says today the appointment of John G. Winant as ambassador to Great Britain has been held up because of official dissatisfaction in London with President Roosevelt's choice.

The Churchill government has indicated its preference for another choice through the President's personal observer, Harry Hopkins, through the British embassy in Washington and most recently through Lord Halifax, new British ambassador, the Bulletin's Washington bureau says.

The story says London will accept Winant if the President insists—and adds the President may insist. But the British have taken advantage of the diplomatic convention which requires prior endorsement of a new ambassador by the nation to which he is to be accredited, to suggest that Roosevelt's original nominee might be improved upon, the story states.

'RED ROSE OF LANCASTER' CONFERRED UPON WILLKIE

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. (3)—Wendell L. Willkie received the "red rose of Lancaster" today—an honor rarely conferred upon Americans.

Visiting this Lancashire industrial city after an inspection trip through bombed Coventry and Birmingham, Willkie was met by a cheering crowd at the Town Hall, where the mayor presented him the rose.

It was too large to wear in his buttonhole, so the 1940 Republican presidential candidate carried it in his hand during a tour of the dockyards.

The red rose is a hand-down from the War of Roses in which the Red Rose signified the House

HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Representative Fish (R.) of New York opened opposition debate to the aid-to-Britain in the House today with a prediction the United States would be involved in war in Europe and Asia within six months if the measure is approved without change.

He also predicted the government would take over vital industries, that civil rights would be suspended and that "we will have a dictatorship in America comparable to the Nazis and Communists."

Fish was the first Republican speaker after Chairman Sabath (D.) of Illinois, of the rules committee formally opened a week of debate on the measure with the assertion it was "purely a defense measure" rather than a war bill.

WOULD AVERT WAR

"I am absolutely certain and positive that this is not a war measure but a bill to prevent war," Sabath said. "It is purely a defense measure—for the defense of the United States."

"Unfortunately, the Republican members and others who have been misled say they are willing for the country to aid Great Britain, but at the same time they wish to tie the hands of the administration and those gentlemen who have the jurisdiction to carry out the mandate of Congress."

Sabath spoke only briefly.

Fish read a prepared statement which said in part:

"If the Dictator War bill passes unamended in the Congress, I predict that within six months we will be involved in war in Europe and Asia, that the government will take over our vital industries, that our civil rights will be suspended, and that we will have a dictatorship in America comparable to the Nazis and Communists."

MAJORITY FOR BILL

Before the House debate began, Speaker Rayburn predicted there was a present majority of 100 to 125 votes for the bill.

"I don't think many are worried about the powers it would give the President," Rayburn told a press conference adding that the Chief Executive already has broad authority as commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy.

ITALIANS ABANDON BARENTU, FLEEING NEW BRITISH TRAP

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 3 (AP)—British forces occupied Barentu, in Italian Eritrea, yesterday after the town had been abandoned by its defenders, British headquarters announced today.

London previously had announced British troops had virtually trapped a "bigish Italian force" in the Barentu area. Other estimates of the "bigish" force ran as high as 100,000 troops—Editor's Note.

On the northern sector of the Eritrean battlefield, today's war bulletin said, British forces pushing beyond captured Agordat, about 40 miles north of Barentu, were pressing hard on the heels of Fascists retreating toward Chera.

ITALIAN POSTS FALL—Chera is about 110 miles inside Eritrea and 50 miles northwest of Asmara, the Eritrean capital.

Further south on the African front, South African forces were reported to have pushed 10 miles inside Ethiopia from Kenya colony to occupy two Italian posts in the Dukana area.

The pursuit of Italians retreating toward Gondar, Ethiopia, was declared to be continuing, "as a result of which the Italians have been obliged to abandon and destroy quantities of material and stores of all kinds."

Still other British forces, the

Eloper's Wife Ill, 'Bride' Sends Card

Another message, purportedly from 17-year-old Edith M. Anderson, was received today while a doctor was called to attend Mrs. Alfred Farese, wife of the Everett city councilor with whom the East Boston schoolgirl is said to have eloped last Thursday.

"Love is swell. So is Al. I love you. Al does, too. Be home soon. Love. (Signed) Edith," the message read.

It was written on the back of a picture postcard, mailed at Newmarket, Va., Saturday afternoon. It was received today by Mrs. Edith E. Anderson of Havre st., East Boston, mother of the runaway girl.

WIFE'S ILLNESS GRAVE

On the front of the card, showing a view of the Valley of Virginia, a number of printed sentences were checked to the effect:

"I am at the 'mountains.' 'Sight-seeing.' 'Classy place.'"

Mrs. Anderson turned this card over to the police just about the time that a doctor was being called for 23-year-old Mrs. Josephine Farese at her mother's home in Montrose st., Everett.

The deserted wife, who has a daughter, Adeline, 3, is expecting the stork in a few months and the tragedy which has come into her life has left her in serious condition, her mother said.

Today, attempting to arise for breakfast, she fainted three times.

BROTHER OFFERS AID

Although it was said at Mrs. Farese's home "no word" had been received from the errant husband, police intimated today the wife had received a letter from John Farese of Ashland, Miss., brother of Alfred.

John, reported to be district attorney in the Mississippi town, is said to have extended his deep sympathy to his sister-in-law and to have pledged his help in getting Alfred to go home, if he could find him.

WRITING DIFFERS

At first it was thought that Farese was planning to visit the brother. Then a letter was received by Mrs. Anderson on Saturday, signed with her daughter's name, telling of plans to go to Wyoming.

Police said that Mrs. Anderson recognized the signature on the postcard as her daughter's, but was doubtful about the rest of the writing. All the writing, however, was different from that in the letter, it was agreed. The mother had been sure that wasn't Edith's.

Both the letter and a previous telegram to Mrs. Anderson said that the girl and Farese were married and were honeymooning.

Farese had told his wife when he left home he was going to Washington to take examinations for a post in the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He attended University of Alabama law school.

Warrants have been obtained by Special Officers Philip Whaland and Patrick Mulvey in East Boston court which charge Farese with abduction and the girl with being a runaway.

Youth Congress Irks Mrs. F. D.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she would not participate in forthcoming meetings of the American Youth Congress because of its attitude on American foreign policy.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt both spoke to delegates to the congress last year. Mrs. Roosevelt also attended many of the sessions and had leaders as White House guests.

She said at her press conference today she did not intend to do any of those things this year.

She said she did not think the stand taken at their Lake Geneva, Wis., conference last summer—opposition to aid for England and opposition to selective service—was realistic.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3 (AP)—On the word of Elaine Barrie, her hectic romance with John Barrymore is over—there will be no reconciliation.

Arriving from New York for her first visit since she and the "great profile" were divorced in November, Miss Barrie declared:

"I am now in pursuit of the ideal play. I am not looking for any ideal man. Of course, if he comes along . . . And please don't say that I'm through with men and marriage. I don't want anyone to get the wrong impression."

WOMAN HELD IN CAR DEATH

Charged with operating negligently and leaving the scene of an accident after causing fatal injuries to George W. Cavanaugh, 65, a rest home inmate, Miss Anna G. Johnson, 33, of Middle st., East Weymouth, pleaded innocent today in Quincy court.

A request for a complaint charging manslaughter against Miss Johnson was not ruled upon by Judge Kenneth Nash, who continued the case until Feb. 11.

He allowed $500 bail on the charge of leaving the scene to stand and set $100 personal recognizance on the other charge.

Counsel for Miss Johnson was Atty. Daniel O'Donnell, town moderator of Weymouth. In fact, the case was virtually all Weymouth, Judge Nash also being town counsel there.

The woman surrendered at Weymouth police station and admitted, police said, being involved in the accident in which Cavanaugh lost his life as he crossed the street only 200 yards from police headquarters.

Apparently still dazed by the accident, she arrived with her brother, Edward Johnson, and told her story to Sgt. George Smith.

They quoted her as saying she became dazed and hysterical after the accident and drove around darkened streets not knowing what to do. After reaching home she collapsed and a doctor was called. Cavanaugh, a retired railroad employee, was identified by members of his family, whose names he carried on papers in his pocket. He leaves four sons and three daughters.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR
Secret Face Lifting Operation Reveals

WALLY'S FACIAL OPERATION BARED

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—The Duchess of Windsor, who became wife of Britain's former king, has had her face lifted in a secret and successful operation, it was reported here today.

Friends said the operation was performed between Christmas and New Year's at her Bahamas home by a well-known New York plastic surgeon, Dr. I. Daniel Shorell.

It occurred right after her trip to Miami to have an infected wisdom tooth removed, the latter work necessary before the face beautifying treatment could be attempted.

Utmost secrecy attended all phases of the operation, with Dr. Shorell going to Hollywood, Fla., and waiting until the one-time Baltimore society belle sent word by her physician that her jaw had mended from the tooth removal. It all happened during the three days that the Duchess was reported as confined to her quarters with a bad cold.

According to friends, the operation has taken years of age from the Duchess, lifting all the skin about her cagging chin and leaving but the tiniest of scars just in back of her ears.

And even those do not show because of her usual hair-do.

The Duchess, it was reported, also sought to have a mole removed but her physicians argued against it since it would be a quick giveaway that she had undergone a facial rejuvenation.

Meanwhile, the woman who startled the world at the age of 43, was said to have been pleased beyond words with the operation and her new appearance.

No Foot Race For Governor

Well, it turns out—according to Gov. Saltonstall's seconds—that it was just kidding when Dick Morrissey, State House elevator operator, challenged the Governor to contest in a 100-yard dash.

There was a bit of excitement when the challenge became noised about because one and all had a keen desire to witness such a spectacle as a sprint between the long, lean greyhound chief executive and the short, chunky beagle lift pilot.

The rumored challenge came when the governor remarked to Morrissey, while riding up to the executive offices, that "it's good to keep in condition," the governor probably referring to his morning walk from Kenmore station to the State House.

The governor is a former Harvard crew and hockey star and Dick is an ex-state officer of the American Legion—but neither has any medals for speed in placing one foot ahead of the other in track competition.

Final preparations were made in Charles Street Jail today by Mrs. Ruth Stanwood Steadman, 27, and her counsel, Atty. Edward F. Flynn, for her appearance in court tomorrow for a hearing on charges of slaying Robert G. Emery, Natick realtor.

Except for an enigmatic remark that he had learned "many important things," Atty. Flynn declined to hint what the gist of their conversation was.

According to municipal court procedure, the pretty, blonde young woman may request a full hearing and presentation by police of all evidence against her in lower court, should she wish to seek a lower court finding of not guilty.

Attack Case Butler To Get Freedom

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Feb. 3 (INS)—Although he believes that justice miscarried, State's Atty. Loria W. Willis announced today the State would not appeal the jury verdict which cleared Joseph Spell, Negro, of charges of attacking his employer, Mrs. Eleanor Strubing.

Spell, held in the county jail since his trial ended Friday night when the jury returned its verdict of "not guilty," was to be freed later today.

In a formal statement explaining his action, Willis said:

"After carefully considering the advisability of an appeal, I was forced to the conclusion that there was no issue of law. It was purely an issue of fact and that has been decided by the jury."

"While I completely disagree with that decision and believe it to be a gross miscarriage of justice, under the law I must accept it. Spell will be released at once."

Before making his statement, Willis conferred with Judge Carl Foster who presided at the trial. That Willis' action definitely ended the case was certain. Both Governor Robert A. Hurley at Hartford and J. J. McGuire, FBI agent at New Haven, announced they had no interest in it.

Hurley reported: "I have nothing to do with the matter. It is a case for the courts."

McGuire who handled the investigation when the case first broke asserted:

"The file is closed in this case in the absence of any evidence of a violation."

The FBI interest originally developed when Mrs. Strubing said that Spell had written a ransom note. The note was not found.

LOW RENT HOUSING SPEEDED

Property owners affected by the city announced Federal Housing project for South Boston today requested by Chairman John Breen of the Boston Housing Authority to contact representatives of the project.

It is announced by Mayor Tobin at a conference with Breen, the low rent housing project will place the South Boston housing project taken over by the federal government for workers on national defense.

The new project is to be located in the area bounded by B st., West 15th st., C st., Essex st., D st., and West Broadway. Breen said he consulted with Cong. John W. McCormack in Washington and was informed federal funds will soon be available.

Breen also stated that other low rent housing projects will not be affected by federal necessity to obtain homes for workers in defense industries.

Mayor Tobin said he favors the proposal of Chairman Breen that the city amend its co-operation agreement with the Boston Housing Authority, to provide for payment of 15 per cent of shelter rent, in lieu of taxes, instead of the present 4 per cent.

PUPILS CALL FOOD STRIKE

More or less unofficially, police today kept an eye on a threatened food strike of Roslindale High School students.

Officers of Station 17 indicated they were prepared to handle any emergency, but made it clear they would step in only if officials requested it.

While the students scheduled the strike for noon in protest that the 5-cent sandwiches sold at the school lunchroom are "anemic," school officials themselves declined to comment.

"I'm not going to say anything," declared Headmaster Ambrose B. Warren in response to questions on the school's position in the controversy.

According to leaders of the strike movement, hundreds of students have agreed to bring their own lunches to school today and will ignore the offerings of the school lunchroom, operated by a women's organization.

The strike, it was learned, was planned at a protest meeting attended by students last Friday.

It was reported that one student, who refused to join the strike, became embroiled in an argument with fellow students during which he was struck in the face.

Although Police Station 17 carried no report of any such incident on its daily journal, it was reported that a radio call directing police to go to the high school was heard on radios in the Roslindale-West Roxbury district last Friday.

The lunchroom trouble has been brewing for weeks, students said. Hot dishes, also served for a nickel, also came in for complaint. "The portions are too small," one student declared.

The boys said the co-eds didn't fare as badly as they did because the girls ate first and "got the best of the stuff."

"And anyway, girls eat like canaries," one student explained. "Most of 'em are on a diet. They eat a couple of slices of bread with a piece of lettuce stuck in between and call it a sandwich—but we don't."

It was explained that girls go to the lunchroom at a few minutes after noon, but the boys do not eat until 12:40.

"Sometimes there's a shortage and there's nothing left," one boy declared, indignantly.

WOMAN'S BEACH MURDER DETAILED IN SALEM TRIAL

SALEM, Feb. 3.—"He said he was out for a good time. That it was his night to howl; a good night for a murder—one of those where the victim is cut from ear to ear."

These bloodthirsty phrases were

Excursion NEW YORK $3.50
SILVER DART LINES

BLACK HAWK LINES
26 PARK SQ. COM. 7540

distributed to John W. Henry, 40-year-old Salisbury special policeman and volunteer fireman, today as Henry's trial for second degree murder of Mrs. Olive Farrell opened here.

The body of Mrs. Farrell, 46, hostess and part owner of a Salisbury Beach hotel, was found, partly clad, in the surf off Oct. 25. Her face and body was badly bruised.

"Henry dragged her to the ocean and threw her in," Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Clegg of Essex County asserted in his opening. "With the incoming tide she drowned as a result. And that is murder."

FALLAS TRIAL DELAYED

The trial of Henry, who is married and father of two small children, is before Judge Vincent Brogan and a jury.

Another capital case scheduled to precede this was delayed because counsel for the defense was not ready.

It was the trial of James Pallas, 48, of New York, accused of shooting to death his 22-year-old daughter, Agnes, in North Andover.

Authorities assert that Pallas killed the girl because she refused to break off an affair with a married Lawrence man.

In outlining the state's case against Henry, Dist. Atty. Clegg said he would show that the defendant and the Farrell woman met in Lucien's Tavern at Salisbury Beach.

It was in this tavern that Henry made the remarks about being "out for a good time" and "a good night for a murder," Clegg asserted.

TELLS OF ATTACK

After drinking in Lucien's tavern, Mrs. Farrell left to go to a cafe next door, Henry followed her and then dragged her out of the place after punching and kicking her, Clegg charged.

Then, the prosecutor declared he would prove, the couple were twice seen on the beach by police. Afterwards Mrs. Farrell's body was found.

According to the State, Henry admitted arguing with the woman, but said he was only "trying to get her to go home."

Clegg said Henry also admitted having dragged her toward the water's edge, a few feet at a time, asking her at each pause if she'd go home.

Police found the woman's corset, underwear, shoes and stockings 40 feet from where drag-marks showed, charged Clegg.

"Her death, the medical examiner will tell you, was caused by drowning after a beating and dragging. It was a cruel and atrocious act," the district attorney declared.

Henry is defended by Atty. Michael J. Batal and Maurice Rappaport, both of Lawrence.

Two Strikes End, Others Continue

By the Associated Press

Factory whistles at Elizabeth, N. J., and Mobile, Ala., sounded the retreat today for 4800 employees who had quit work on defense contracts because of strikes.

Counter-balancing these two settlements, management-union deadlocks kept 13,500 workers idle in factories handling other preparedness orders.

CIO union members reached agreements yesterday which ended walkouts at the Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corporation plant in Elizabeth and the Alabama Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Co. yards in Mobile.

At the Chicago tractwork works of the International Harvester Co., management and CIO representatives agreed to get together over a conference table today with David T. Readley, a federal conciliator.

But at the strike-bound Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. plant in Milwaukee, Dr. John R. Steelman, chief of the federal conciliation service, said: "Little or no progress has been made toward a settlement."

GIRL'S DIVE TO DEATH ACCIDENT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 2 (AP)—Dolores Del Mar, 29, a Hollywood night club dancer, drowned in Los Angeles harbor at dawn Sunday after plunging nude from a yacht dock.

Police Lieut. A. H. Peirce listed her death as accidental. He said others on the yacht—Arthur M. Hamburger, 35, a movie assistant director; Robert Tracy, an actor, and Alyce Dere, 27, dancer and roommate of Miss Del Mar—told him:

The four went aboard Hamburger's craft Saturday night after a party. Hamburger and Tracy retired, and the two women stepped to the dock preparatory to going for a walk. Suddenly Miss Del Mar plunged into the water.

Miss Dere pulled her out, took off her wet clothing and hung it in the yacht wheelhouse. Then she went in search of a robe. When she returned, Miss Del Mar had disappeared. She saw her struggle in the water briefly, then vanish.

Miss Dere's screams brought help, and two firemen with grappling hooks recovered the body. Police said an inquest would be held.

EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1941

MAYBE that conversation never happened. Maybe it did. But, at any rate, it pretty much tells how we folks, who bake Bond Bread, feel about our job.

It's a quarter of a century, now, that we've been working at this job. And, in that time, thousands of youngsters have grown up with Bond Bread the number one item on the family table.

Some of those kids belonged to our neighbors. Some of 'em were our own. And we knew they'd only turn out to be strong, and healthy, and happy, if we made our bread as good as we knew how.

Does that give you an idea why we have never cut corners, or taken short-cuts? Does it explain why the flour, milk, and yeast in Bond Bread are so fine you'd be proud to have them in your own kitchen?

Yes! Baking Bond Bread is building men and women. And, we sleep better nights, because our bread is good.

LaFollette Stresses Danger in Aid Law

Britain with materials and ships to win a smashing victory.

"This would be a mandate to carry out that policy," LaFollette said, "and in that sense I think that it is a mandate to a war policy."

Connally asked if LaFollette were familiar with the Kellogg-Briand non-aggression pact.

"I also know," LaFollette replied, "that there is a nine-power pact that we went on a limb on that the British sawed off."

DENIES LIKING HITLER

"That means you are mad at the British about something," Connally remarked.

"I'm not mad at the British,"

LaFollette protested. "I have great respect for them."

LaFollette responded in the affirmative when Connally asked whether he was opposed to Hitler and Mussolini and their governmental theories.

"You don't want to see them win this war, do you?" the Texan continued.

"When you ask that question," LaFollette replied, "it carried an implication like 'Have you stopped beating your wife?' ... It sort of puts you in the hole."

It tries to put our side in the position of saying either that we like Hitler and want him to win the war or in the position of favoring a policy that leads to war."

Connally said he would withdraw the question if LaFollette didn't want to answer it or was "embarrassed" by it.

"LICK HITLER IN U. S."

"I want to answer the question," the witness protested warmly. "I am not embarrassed. I think the best way to lick Hitler and what he stands for is to do the job we've got to do here in the United States and the Western Hemisphere."

Chairman George (D.), of Georgia, rebuked members of the audience who applauded this reply.

"This bill," LaFollette continued, "confers the most far-reaching grant of power ever proposed for one man."

With his brother, Sen. LaFollette (Progressive) of Wisconsin, listening at the committee table, the former governor declared that the "logical consequence" of American foreign policy would be the conveying of shipments to Great Britain.

SAY CONVOYS SURE

"If the convoy of shipping demanded by the British public does not involve us in war—and it is difficult to see how any other consequence is possible—then on exactly the same logic and reasoning, we shall be urged and yes, expected, to go to war when our Hessians are exhausted and can fight no longer alone," he added.

FAREWELL—Capt. Alfred Moore, skipper of the mercy ship S. S. Cold Harbor, gets a kiss and a handshake from Helen Coppenhaver, Red Cross official, before sailing from Baltimore. His ship is carrying a million-dollar cargo of relief supplies to France and Spain.

LaFollette said he used the word "Hessians" in the sense that the British now are fighting our battle, as Hessians fought for Britain during the Revolution.

"I want to underline my 'no,'" the witness continued, "to those who, not selfishly, but unwisely, would launch this nation on a course whose only logical outcome can be our total involvement in war in Europe."

HITS INVASION FEAR

LaFollette told the committee the "Administration is working both sides of the street." One proponent of the legislation, he said, had testified it would enable the United States to stay out of war while another had argued that "we must go to war to make good the objectives of the bill." He did not specify to whom he was referring.

"Against the hysterical fear of invasion," he continued, "there is another danger—that once the United States is involved in this over our heads so that we can't back out—and Britain's bargaining power is greatly enhanced—there is a risk that we might have a new Hoare-Laval deal, and the United States might at once find itself quite alone at war against the world."

"In dealing with foreign diplomats, especially those of Great Britain, it is well to keep in mind the proposition of not underestimating one's opponent."

SEES FINANCE REVOLT

If the purpose of American aid to Britain was to aid America's defense, LaFollette said, the British could not be expected to "thank us for a British victory bought without an ounce of American blood."

He predicted that without American participation Britain could not "win the smashing knockout that has been talked about" and would therefore "make the peace on terms best suited to her interests and we can look out for ourselves."

LaFollette expressed conviction the world was on "the threshold of tremendous change" and that "instead of an industrial revolution we are headed for a financial revolution."

Police Quell Riots In Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Feb. 3 (AP)—Order returned here after fierce rioting between soldiers and civilians suspected of anti-British sympathies had sent approximately 140 persons to hospitals.

Military leaves were cancelled as authorities sought to prevent a recurrence of the disorders, which were put down only after police reinforcements from the surrounding towns resorted to tear gas bombs and baton charges. Most of those injured were soldiers.

Officials said there had been no disturbances elsewhere in the rich mining area of which this city is the center.

The rioting followed a meeting Friday of the Ossewabrandwag, an organization embracing extreme Republicanism and generally regarded as anti-British.

The meeting itself, said to have been "non-political," was orderly, but street fighting subsequently broke out between soldiers and civilians wearing the full heads favored by members of Ossewabrandwag.

Police quelled the disturbance, but new disorders flared Saturday night and continued yesterday.

The victims were Frank Gangi, 29, of Topfield, and Virginia Tarr, 19, of Lynn.

British, Greeks War On Italian Shipping

SPLIT, Yugoslavia, Feb. 3 (AP)—A concerted British-Greek submarine campaign against Italian military supply routes deep in the Adriatic sea was indicated today by reports that seven Italian vessels had been sunk recently.

Travelers from the Yugoslav island of Vis (Lissa), 50 miles south of here, reported that a submarine today sank the Italian freighter Vittorio Benito, of about 5000 tons, and another unidentified 6000-ton Italian vessel.

Nazi Bombs Kill Italian Prisoners

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—A "large number" of Italian prisoners were killed when the British ship evacuating them from the Libyan coast was bombed, the Admiralty announced today.

A communique said:

"It has been reported from the Mediterranean that a large number of Italian prisoners have lost their lives as a result of German or Italian action."

"On the afternoon of Friday, Jan. 31, a merchant ship evacuating Italian prisoners of war from the Libyan coast was attacked by two enemy aircraft believed to have been German. The ship was hit and sustained some damage. A large number of casualties, as caused among Italian prisoners of war, many of which were fatal."

GREEKS IN 10-MILE ADVANCE

ATHENS, Feb. 3 (AP)—Greek shock troops opposed by fresh Italian forces were credited today with the capture of an important mountain range, 10 miles long, in their drive north of Klisura into central Albania.

A government spokesman asserted the Greek attack yesterday was "really heroic" and netted uncounted machine-guns, rifles and supplies in the positions from which the Italians were driven.

Most of 270 prisoners taken belonged to units rushed into the Albanian fighting only last month, the spokesman declared.

800 PRISONERS

These prisoners were said to have increased to 800 the number of Italians taken captive in this sector since Gen. Ugo Cavallero took over the Fascist command in Albania Jan. 13.

Snows which fell for weeks all along the 100-mile battlefield have been followed by heavy rains which have an equally deterrent effect upon operations, advisers from the front said.

The capture of the mountain range, these reports said, was followed today by a lull in which the Greeks were reported to be consolidating their new positions and mopping up isolated pockets of resistance.

TWELVE ATTACKS

The Greek spokesman said the Italians tried 12 counter attacks last week in unsuccessful efforts to stop the Greek thrust into central Albania, and added:

"The Italians, having been convinced that counter attacks are ineffective and are costing heavy losses, have renounced any further attempts."

Heavy artillery action by both sides was reported farther west where the Greeks are attacking toward Valona along a crista road.

The port was attacked again yesterday from the air by British bombers co-operating with the Greeks.

"THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME"—Jimmie Hatlo's humorous cartoons of life as it really is—a regular feature in the Boston Evening American.

RAF Continues Day Raids on Nazi Bases

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—British planes bombed targets in the northwestern part of German-occupied France in a pre-dawn attack today, the government announced, in a continuation of week-end thrusts by day against Axis objectives from Flanders to the Italian island of Sardinia.

A ministry of information announcement said the early morning raid was carried out by a small force of RAF bombers on offensive patrol over the continent.

An earlier admiralty announcement said that British naval aircraft yesterday successfully attacked "one of the main sources of power supply" in Sardinia, simultaneously with other RAF daylight attacks on German occupied ports and airbases along the invasion coast from Flanders to Brittany.

(The Italian high command said that a dam across the Tiro river in Sardinia was attacked with bombs and torpedoes, but that there was no damage.—Editor's Note.)

After these attacks in which more than 100 Spitfires and Hurricanes fighters guarded high-flying bombers, the air war went into another overnight lull with no soundings in the English channel.

This morning a single German raider crossed the channel through a snowstorm and dropped four bombs on the outskirts of London, and then sped away before guns were brought into action.

The bombs killed a child and damaged several homes. No alert was sounded in the capital.

Daylight raiders also were reported over the northeast coast and over central Scotland. Bombs fell at two places in East Anglia.

Five British naval trawlers fought an intense quarter-hour battle with three German Doornik bombing planes off a southeast coast town today which ended with the Germans flying off toward the French coast.

The British daylight raids, concentrated on German preparations at French and Belgian coast points nearest England, were described by some observers as an example of "forward-offense" tactics employed to spy out Nazi invasion movements and "hash them up."

One highly placed expert expressed doubt that the Germans actually would attempt any invasion before early March—if then.

This source said soupy weather over western Europe had made bogs of the Luftwaffe's advance landing fields and asserted Adolf Hitler was being kept busy with "preoccupations elsewhere" such as unrest in the Balkans and Italy's difficulties in the Mediterranean.

The air ministry news service said one heavily-guarded bomber force in yesterday's daylight raids attacked the waterfront at Boulogne, bombing barges.

HITLER STRONGER IN AIR, BUT CAN'T WIN, RAF VIEW

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Germany's first line air strength will be "measurably in excess" of Britain's on March 1, but Britain "will again beat back any return to mass daylight bombing as a preliminary to invasion" with superior aircraft and pilots, a high-ranking officer of the Royal Air Force declared today.

The officer said the recent lull in the German air offensive against Britain was not due to lack of desire to continue the offensive, but was due, first, to "deficient flying weather," second, to repair and overhauling of a large number of German bombers damaged in night operations, and, third, to diversion of a "considerable number" of bombers to the Mediterranean fighting zone.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that the Germans are suffering a higher percentage of losses due to weather than the personnel of the squadrons like."

INVASION "HAPPY EVENT"

"The Germans are not sending bombers over in the early morning when they return," this authority continued.

He added that the lull in the German air offensive is operating against Britain in "positive and constructive for heavy bombing."

"Once the weather breaks," he said, "the Germans can bring planes in Sicily and other Mediterranean bases back to France, Norway and the lowlands to participate in attacks on this country which perhaps will precede invasion...

"Everyone here is waiting for the happy event—invasion. When it is announced, it is more liable to be a French baby than a British one," he would not amplify this.

NEW PLANE "NOT MUCH"

The Germans may try mass bombing by daylight when invasion comes "to isolate battlefields on beaches," the officer said, but he declared mass attacks far more likely to wear down British fighter strength were not expected because such attacks failed last summer.

"The Germans," he continued, "have not developed fighters superior to those of the British which beat them last summer, while we have gone steadily on."

He said the end was not in sight on either side in night bombing, but in the long process of expatriation "we are a little ahead."

Of a new German plane, the Focke-Wulf Zerstorer, he said: "We don't think much of it from what we have seen. It does not outclimb British fighters of equivalent date of production (summer of 1940). British fighters will continue their technical superiority over German fighters throughout 1941."

ABOUT U. S. PLANES

Of American planes he said: "We do not find their maneuverability much affected by added weight due to increased armament. The American plane we will like best is the one we get soonest in large numbers."

There is no danger of the supply of planes lagging behind the supply of aircraft, he reported, since "the fighting is over our own country and we manage to save a good many." The rate of consumption of aircraft was described as "far higher" than of crews.

"More and more aircraft is the problem, not pilots," he declared. "Aircraft manufacturers are the most optimistic people in the world. You will find the total aircraft supplied to Britain from the United States this year won't be what we expect to get, certainly, below what we'd like to have."

300 Will Ferry Planes Overseas

LONDON, Feb. 3 (AP)—A reliable source said today the British expected 1000 American-built bombers to be flying across the Atlantic for Great Britain monthly by May.

This figure will be well over the United States production rate, this source said, but will include planes built in the winter months.

Great Britain is buying American commercial flying boats to ferry the bomber pilots back across the Atlantic, it was added.

Three hundred pilots were reported to be qualified for the ferry service. The pilots, members of the auxiliary air transport service which includes 68 American fliers, were said to be planning on five transatlantic flights each a month.

This is the market!

This chart represents the Boston market—city and suburbs—by expenditure groups. A little gold at the top, a lot of silver and copper below. Comparatively few families in the $5000 and over a year group, but a whale of a lot of families in the $1000 to $5000 a year group. And they're the families that make the Boston market one of the largest and richest in these United States.

This is bologna!....

Some newspapers would have you believe their circulation is all in the higher income group. This is a fond hope on their part, but a vain illusion on the part of the advertiser. Nobody can publish to a pocketbook. An editor collects interests, not incomes. And interests and incomes do not coincide. Spending habits do not parallel reading habits. Obviously, newspaper circulation cannot be confined to any income group.

This is a fact!.....

Newspapers draw their readers from all over the economic lot. The appetite for news is universal—the interest in pictures, the craving for entertainment—are universal, not determined by cash on hand. The fact that so many more people in the Boston market read The Record-American than read any other Boston daily newspaper is simply a case of selling more papers because more people want to buy them.

Quality in circulation means just one thing as far as modern merchandising is concerned—BUYING POWER.

14 Petain's Aide, Laval To Talk Over Crisis

EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1941

VICHY, France, Feb. 3 (AP)—French Naval Minister Adm. Jean Darlan was reported to have arrived in Paris by special train today and it was believed he would confer with former Vice Premier Pierre Laval.

It had been reported for several days the navy minister was to make the trip from Vichy to Paris, where a radio announcement told of the formation of a "People's Committee" advocating close collaboration with Germany and praising Laval. Although Chief of State Philippe Petain had announced the misunderstanding between himself and Laval was dissipated by their meeting Jan. 18, Laval has not been taken back into the Vichy government.

Recently the Germans were reported to have taken the stand no further moves toward collaboration would be possible until Laval was back in the cabinet.

Laval may return to Vichy on Wednesday, a highly-placed informant in Geneva told International News Service today. Whether Laval will be reinstated in the government remained uncertain—Editor's note.

Berlin Smiles on New Paris "People's Group"

BERLIN, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Wilhelmstrasse regards the new French "People's Committee" formed in Paris at least with benevolent neutral eyes, authorized sources indicated today, although at the same time they emphasized it is exclusively up to the French people themselves to worry over their country's political future.

They said that obviously groups exist in France which believe the Vichy government's conception about Germany does not correspond to the French people's wishes. These groups, they said, believe in close collaboration with the Reich.

Authorized sources were unwilling to pronounce themselves for or against the new Paris group, but added that its program was such as not to give grounds for German apprehension.

German interest in French political organizations, they said, concerned the German occupying forces only if law and order were endangered.

Nazis Make Textiles From Hop Vines

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—German scientists, after six years of experimental work, have devised a process for turning hop, plant vines into textiles, the agricultural department reported today. The hop vines are grown principally for use in brewing beer.

Information from Germany states that the hop fibers, after being processed were found to be "three times as strong as cotton, more resistant than hemp and free from wrinkling."

BARENTU GIVEN UP BY ITALIANS

GIU announcement said, "are extending and deepening our penetration" into Italian Somaliland.

BRITISH PUSH AHEAD
In North Africa the British said the concentration of their forces west of captured Derna was "proceeding smoothly"—presumably in preparation for an assault on Benghazi, capital of Eastern Libya.

The Italian high command yesterday reported hard fighting around Agordat and the area to the south, in which Fascist warplanes were said to have "participated ceaselessly" with attacks on British ground forces. Action in Libya was limited largely to aerial operations, the Italians said.

The Germans reported their combat planes in the Mediterranean on Saturday attacked "with great success" several harbors on the North African coast serving as British supply bases. Three merchant ships were reported to have been sunk and three others damaged. The Italian high command also reported that on Friday German air units sank a 10,000-ton ship in the port of Bardia, one of the Libyan strongholds the British have won from the Italians.—Editor's note.

Capture of Agordat, where the Italians were said to have offered stubborn resistance, placed the British about 70 miles from Asmara and 100 miles from Massawa, important Red Sea port.

Agordat, 80 miles from the British jumping-off point on the border of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, is linked with both Asmara and Massawa by rail. A town with normally a population of about 2000, it also is strategically important as the hub of a network of motor highways leading east, west, north and south.

A terrific aerial bombardment paved the way for capture of the town by British and Indian troops, British reports said.

Within a few hours after its fall, the British said, the mechanized units were in close pursuit of the retreating Italians, who were reported withdrawing toward Keren, 40 miles east.

Military circles in Cairo said that the British progress from Agordat toward the Red Sea might be slowed, however, because of the hilly terrain, which lends itself readily to defense.

Court Told Hubby Left on Bridal Day

SALEM, Feb. 3—Hardly had the echoes of the wedding march died away when William Laborde of Salem gulped out of his bride's home there and he hasn't been back in the nearly five years since.

This was declared today in probate court by the abandoned bride, Mrs. Jennie Laborde, whose divorce petition, charging desertion, was taken under advisement by Judge John W. Phelan.

On April 24, 1926, she said, they returned from the ceremony to his home, where a celebration had been planned, but—

"He got restless and paced the floor nervously. He had a mad look on his face. He said he wasn't going to stay. I said, 'You can't do this to me!'"

He said, "I can and I will!" And he did! He pushed past his bride when she tried, she said, to stop him. His mother, who was present in tears, she said,

REFUSED TO RETURN

Two months later she met him and tried to reason with him, she said but he told her it was no use.

Mrs. Josephine M. Murray of Landon ave., Saugus, and Frederick H. Murray, also of Saugus, on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Frederick was very much at home, said Mrs. Murray, in contrast to Mrs. Laborde, but so many were shocked that they had to leave him with his family and drink away.

The first time Frederick left the wife was only a few days after the wedding, when she refused to see him some money she had saved before marriage. On another occasion, she said he came home at 4 P. M. and passed the afternoon, when she was out, up and down the stairs.

BROUGHT GIRL HOME

But tops in the married life of the Murphys was when he brought home a girl, a friend of the wife, and the girl's parents announced that she was to be Murray's wife.

Not only that, said the visitor, but Frederick had promised her a diamond engagement ring.

"Why, he already married to me," retorted Mrs. Murray. And when the husband said, admitted promising a engagement ring to the other girl, Mrs. Murray left.

Cruel and abusive treatment also was charged by Mrs. Murray, a daughter of Charles F. Murray, a former U. S. Customs officer in Manchester, whom she married in January, 1926.

Mrs. Murray, who asked in her bill for permission to retain her maiden name of Thompson, rather than the name of Frederick, also asked alimony and today in court that now she desires no support from Frederick.

Her case was the first in the divorce court since the divorce law was passed.

Senate Passes Cargo Ship Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—The Senate passed today legislation providing for a $20,000,000 emergency cargo ship construction program.

The House had approved the measure previously, but at the request of the Maritime Commission the Senate wrote in $50,000,000 of contract authorization for the commission's regular construction program. The House must now agree to this.

The bill appropriates for the emergency program $312,500,000 to be used with $38,500,000 available from other sources to build 200 steel merchant ships and new ship yard facilities.

65 Billion Debt Wins in Test

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—A bill to increase the debt limit from $19,000,000,000 to $25,000,000,000 and to provide government funds until June 3, 1942, was reported favorably today by the House ways and means committee.

The bill also provides for taxes to be levied against the interest on future U. S. bonds, and names Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to inaugurate a "liberty loan" system of selling bonds by means of the savings bond law.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

"HOW DO YOU dance a Cotillion?" is the question most debbs and younger Bostonians ask the minute the first Boston Cotillion, which is to be held at the Hotel Somerset this evening, is mentioned.

They're all going to the party, but because it's the first Cotillion Boston has had since way back before the last war, they're a little bit worried about just what is expected of them.

We've talked to a number of people who used to dance in Cotillions when they were as popular as swing music is today, and the consensus of opinion is that the young folks have nothing to fear. Each Cotillion dance, or figure, is like a regular dance with a little game or march mixed in.

A leader bosses the whole thing and tells everyone what's to be done. Couples start to dance in the usual way... then at a signal from the leader make whatever formation he designates—a circle or a line or whatever it may be. After following out the maneuvers of the figure, which may range all the way from something like London Bridge to Musical Chairs, the dancers sit down and let another group of couples try it.

A good leader is supposed to be full of all kinds of novelties and surprises. Even a veteran Cotillion dancer wouldn't know what was coming up next, so lack of familiarity with Cotillions is no handicap.

The greater part of the program of tonight's party will be devoted to regular modern dancing. There will be several old-fashioned Cotillion figures following the Grand March.

Practically everyone is coming on from one of the numerous dinner parties taking place in fashionable homes and clubs. Mary Remick, daughter of Mrs. Henry Davenport of Weston, will be honored at one of the largest pre-Cotillion dinners, given by her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Yerxa at the Tennis and Racquet Club.

The debutante guest of honor, a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club, will welcome her guests in a billowy gown of jade green georgette. It is fashioned with a full skirt and long Bishop sleeves and trimmed with bands of flat silver sequins at the neck and wrists. Her corsage will be of gardenias. Mary is a niece of Mrs. Ralph Gray of Mt. Vernon st., who is spending the winter in Arizona, and a cousin of Miss Alice Merriam.

OUT IN CHESTNUT HILL a gay group of dancers will gather for dinner at Cynthia Reece's before coming in to the Cotillion. Her guests will include Ann Folsom, Polly Faulkner, Bill Binnian, Tony Whittemore and her brother, "Bull" Reece.

"Bull," incidentally, will perform the most important function of the evening—that of crowning the Queen of the Cotillion, one of the most eagerly anticipated features of the affair. The queen has been chosen by votes of Harvard stags who have attended deb parties throughout the fall and winter. "Bull," as president of Harvard's exclusive Owl Club, has been given the honor of placing a coronet of roses on the winner's blonde—or will she be brunette?—curls. If our guess is correct, she's a blonde; gentlemen still prefer us.

And Marriage Age Is No Bar To Happiness

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your column every day and find lots of useful information in it. Sometimes I have to smile when I read a letter, asking if a difference of five years is too much between a man and woman. I am five years older than my husband, but I happen to be one of those fortunate women who do not look as old as they are. I try to keep myself looking neat and trim, and I guess that helps a lot, too.

As far as happiness is concerned, we never have any trouble, as we discuss our problems together, and we manage to find time for each other's hobbies. He likes to bowl and goes once a week. I like to make things, so I go to sewing school, so you see we get along quite well.

We have two children of high school age.

C. H.
History is full of the names of women who have been fascinating up to 70 years of age. It's hard to define their charm. A certain buoyancy and enthusiasm seems to account for a good deal of it, and of course, making the most of one's looks. Evidently this lady has found the secret. A wife five years older than her husband is no problem at all. Half her charm is undoubtedly her greater worldly experience.

THE RAF WOUNDED HEROES SPEAK

Copyright, 1941, by New England Newspaper Publishing Co. All Rights Reserved.
Passed by the British and Canadian Censors.

TORONTO, Ont., Canada, Feb. 3—Life at the 1st Airforce Headquarters Command is a prosaic round of business detail, supply problems, dispatch of personnel, bills of lading, purchase commissions, et cetera.

No glitter or glamour of war's fanfare enters here. Just an intermingling of airforce officers and civilians, male and female, in a big honeycombed office building where high ranking executives bustle about on His Majesty's Service (H. M. S.) and non-com typists turn out military forms. Except for the mist-blue uniforms, campaign ribbons, gilt buttons and pince-nez form, it might be the peacetime nerve center of a large and thriving utility.

Well it IS a utility—the most gigantic Trust on this hemisphere; one that deals in men, blood, bones and brains and monopolizes materials which range from flea-powder to long-range bombers. Its one object is wreckage—the destruction of Nazi total-autocracy. It is one of four Commonwealth Air training commands which control an estimated 40,000 men and three-quarters of a billion dollars. It is the central locus from which radiates a spider-web of tendrils to South Africa, and the Antilles, to Britain.

Here, among a Canadian majority, are a few English RAF officers—mostly production experts and consultants. Except for one or two they are middle aged "brass hats," past combat age. But at least one, Wing Commander Louis W. Dickens, flew in the 1940 "Blitz" over mounds of war-tumbled masonry and smoking rubbish and where man, divinely fashioned, committed mutual murder with devices of the latest and most scientific mischief.

CONFESSION TERRIFIC
As Wing Commander Dickens described his Blitz experience it was less like human relations between neighboring nations than war among the insects—armies of omnivorous ants and swarms of aerial gnats and hornets.

Dickens spoke with the incisive calm of a history master in a boy's school.

"War was declared Sept. 3, 1939, at 11:15 a. m.," said he, "and the first of our bombing squadron was in the air at noon. We just buzzed around the North sea looking for the German fleet, but it was May of 1940 before I saw my first Nazi, and then I saw lots of 'em."

That was when the "phoney" phase of the war exploded in the "Blitz" and Nazi columns began stabbing blow-torch holes in the coast of I. Dutch, Belgium, French and British front.

"They didn't advance on a broad front in successive waves of skirmishers under a creeping barrage, as they had done in the other war," said Dickens. "They came in swift, parallel columns like intermittent rivers which flooded out, fanwise, at the points of combat."

"From the air you could look down in intervals of comparative quiet between these columns, making a kind of scalloped effect, with the contact points a boiling, swirling mass of men, machinery, smoke and flame. And always the central core of the Nazi kept pressing on to erupt continually like the end of a stick of sealing wax—sputtering and expanding in new bubbles of flame. The confusion was terrific."

GET BOMB ORDER

As leader of a squadron of eight English bombers in the rear-rear of the British, Dickens' job was to destroy the bottle-neck approaches, sometimes a bridgehead, an ammunition train, a tank convoy or a supply depot.

But in the rapid Nazi advance target objectives that seemed vital at one moment became secondary to other vital objectives as the tide rolled on.

"We bit off a lot of finger-nails," said Dickens.

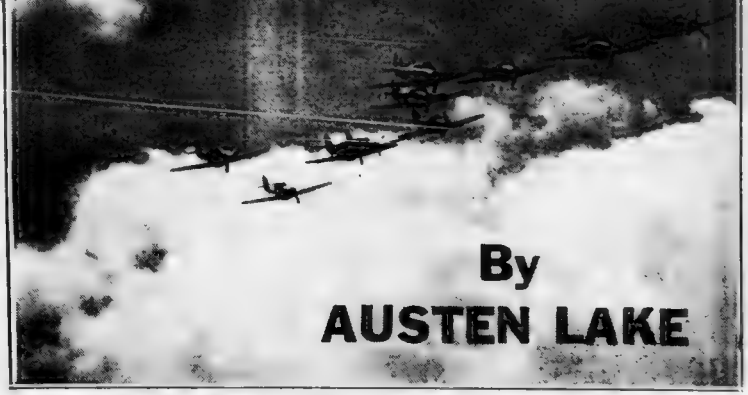

Thus on the morning of May 12 while the moon was still in the sky the air commandant radioed Dickens to bomb the bridges at Maastricht, where Panzer columns pommel through. Dickens listened warily, said "Yes Sir" with a ho-hum feeling that here was just another set of meaningless motions. "Roll 'em out," he snapped, firing his column his crews and saying "Maastricht Bridges." No need to amplify: Everybody knew the Maastricht bridges!

PLANES SNIFE AWAY

This time no revoking order came! The squadron rose in the early dawn and headed North in echelon, like hub-nutted geese.

"The morning mists were lifting," related Dickens, "and far ahead we could see a great mushroom cloud hanging in the sky, like kinds of dirty dish-water. Below us increasing numbers of English ground batteries were hammering away and the roads were solid masses of refugees, soldiers and material."

"Here and there we saw Nazi Messerschmitts and a few pounce down and snipe away leaving a den of raptures in the crowded lanes and, as the smoke

AUSTEN LAKE

Editor's Note—This story by Austen Lake is the seventh of a series we consider to be the best yet produced for newspaper publication since the war began. Lake went to Canada in the great hope, lesser expectation, of being able to talk with RAF heroes inviolated home from the Battle of Britain. With the permission of the RAF and Canada's censor, granted for the first time, he has tapped this source of true, breathless adventure stories. The result is a series that breathes of raw courage and deathless exploit in high endeavor—the stories of those "so few" to whom Churchill said that never in all history had so many owed so much.

cleared, shell pits with a fringe of motionless forms. But oddly, from your height in the sky, you don't get the impression that men are dying down below—just a cold, impersonal feeling as though they are termite or ground grubs. The human mind is incapable of such sudden immanencies of thought."

The upper air was glowing in the morning sun, he said, as they flew over the murky smudge around Maastricht where Nazi armored machines, like tiny land crabs, were crawling steadily forward, followed by microbe strings of riflemen.

They were flying high now in a solid gray twilight of wood smoke and powder fumes before coming into the clear behind their target and circling around. For bombing theory required the squadron to head back toward their own lines before diving on an objective, so, if disabled, they might coast in and save their ships.

"As we slanted down with our bomb doors open and the bomb aimers squinting through their sights," said Dickens, "we ran impressions when coming out of an anesthetic. But I know there were four or five Messerschmitts on my tail, taking pot shots and swooping past. I put my plane in a convulsion of dips, swerves and twists, trying not to give them a steady target at any instant. We were losing altitude at each turn and in a kind of numb coma I recall seeing objects fall like flaming candle drips with a fall of black smoke, whether ours or theirs I don't know."

What crowded his thoughts? Escape, of course? "No," said Dickens, "I had to drop my bombs first, so I wriggled around over the target until I heard my observer say, 'Bombs away,' and then scooted with every ounce of throttle I could get from the old girl. My rear gunner had stopped firing—my observer noticed it first, so I wig-wagged the plane for dear life, knowing that the Nazis would close in, if they could, and take us for cold meat."

Like other Canadian and English war fliers, Dickens remarked of the trivial, nonessential thoughts that flood a pilot's mind in extreme moments of peril. So he found himself preoccupied with the idea that how he was dressed in a wooden pilot's suit and an old pair of flying pants. "I thought," he said, "I was certain to be taken prisoner—far more never dreams he is going to be killed. Egotism or some mysterious defense mechanism, doesn't allow for that..."

Flight Lieut. Molson had previously mentioned the phenomenon. "You never think you'll be killed," he said, "you always picture the other fellow going down. You sit in your pilot's bucket encased in a kind of protective wrapper of confidence."—Editor's note.

FINDS GUNNER SHOT

"... I fumed over the fact that the Nazis wouldn't know whether I was officer, non-com or civilian," continued Dickens. "Silly, was it?"

But he didn't crash! In the long run home over his own lines, his fast Blenheim—equal to a fighter's speed at low altitudes—outsped the Messerschmitts. At last, alone, he rolled into his aerodrome, unstrapped his safety belt, squeezed through the bulkhead and took stock. His rear gunner was slumped among the floor-litter of cartridge cases and gun-gear, unconscious and with his tunic a crimson smear. Of the seven bullets which had gone through the plane a graphic testimony to Dickens' adroit pilotry—three had gone through the gunner's chest.

"That's the gruesome part of the business," mused Dickens, "the cold aftermath! I looked down at the husk of that poor fellow, who a short hour ago had been a vital, living, breathing man with home ties, family and a love for the simple things—beer, gramophone music, a game of crown and anchor. I felt my first wave of nausea then."

He helped trundle the gunner from the interior of the bomber, which is an upholstered shell with bare, hardware fittings, and then settled down to wait for what was left of his squadron. It was a morbid vigil, he said, watching the bright morning skies and studying each new dot through binoculars. The minutes ticked off while he waited. Not yet, not yet! His pulse beat.

DOWN IN FLAMES

The ground crews waited, too, silently. "But none came," said Dickens moodily. "Of the eight bombers nine alone got back. What fate most of the crews suffered we never heard. Some were incinerated in their burning planes, some were killed outright or died in crashes, some may have been taken prisoner. Of the lot only two pilots and an observer escaped under the most unbelievable circumstances."

One plane came down in flames near the Fortress of Liege where the British had been firing from staff guns to force a withdrawal. It was empty, and the wreckage was a jumble of twisted metal and German machine-gun parts taking on a small, putrid white and an odd, faint, putrid odor.

"Somehow he made it," said Dickens, "and he escaped to the coast in that same Ford—went like a bat out of hell!"

Another pilot and observer had crashed near a French tank that was fighting rear guard action and were picked up by the crew.

"They came back riding on the bonnet of the tank," said Dickens. It was a mad business, he said, in which life times were crammed into a few short hours and sensations melted together in a molten mass which later jelled in a hodge-podge mixture as water colors merge and run together. So now, in the comparative calm of Toronto headquarters' life, he seldom thinks about it—as though nature had drawn a shutter on the scene. Go back? Certainly! The instant ordered. The job as yet was unfinished.

Tomorrow, the story of "Little Norway," a settlement in Toronto composed of Norwegians who fled the Nazi slaughter.

THE Chamber of Commerce of Washington County, Maine, is making a commendable effort to have the Federal Government establish a naval base in Passamaquoddy Bay.

Quoddy, according to the Chamber's enterprising leaders, is the only international harbor available for joint use by the United States and Canada.

Moreover, it is ice-free in the severest Winter weather; has water deep enough for ships of any size; is easy and safe of approach from the sea; is capable of effective defense from any form of attack, and is the nearest of any comparable American port to Europe.

A TYPICAL SCENE ON MAINE'S RUGGED COAST
Enemy Vessels MIGHT Use These Natural Harbors

The Chamber further notes that Quoddy was favorably considered for use as a base for the North Atlantic fleet during the World War and would have been so used had the conflict continued another six months.

Maine people are thus wisely seeking their proper share of the defenses which are being provided under the current rearmament program.

The State has more than two thousand miles of coastline, most of it wide open and unprotected.

To keep on ignoring and neglecting it is to invite enemy vessels to use its numerous bays and harbors as jumping off points for raids on Boston and other cities if ever the United States is involved in actual warfare.

WE IN MASSACHUSETTS and people of other New England States would do well to profit by the good example set by Washington County, Maine.

It is generally admitted that no other part of the country can build ships better or more cheaply than New England.

Our experience goes back to the days of the Clipper ships, universally acknowledged to have been the best of their time.

We have abundant resources and a wealth of skilled labor. And, what is equally important, we have the broad Atlantic on which to launch the completed vessels.

But scores of our smaller shipyards are idle. Thousands of men who ought to have good jobs are unemployed.

Timber that might go into the construction of naval and maritime craft rots in lakes and rivers.

WHY?

Simply because there has been no concerted effort to present New England's case to the Federal Government.

We might receive the ship contracts that belong to us if we asked for them.

But for some reason that defies explanation no one in authority has asked.

BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE our Senators, Congressmen, State and municipal governments and Chambers of Commerce should wake up.

If they do, every shipyard, small and large, from Long Island Sound to the Passamaquoddy Bay, can be put to work in the construction of the ships our national defense and security demand.

A small part of the money now being sought for Britain and fewer millions than have already been given to China would be more than sufficient to make the New England shipbuilding industry busier than the proverbial beehive.

The best feature of a program of this kind is the fact that it will continue long after the current war scare ends.

Hundreds of the merchant vessels which have been sunk in European waters in the past year will have to be replaced within the next decade.

Much of this construction can and will be done in New England if we equip ourselves to do it NOW.

MY DAY

WASHINGTON, Sunday — On Friday afternoon, I attended a Girl Scout ceremony in the D. A. R. national headquarters. This was a birthday celebration at which they presented the work of their service bureaus in tableaux which showed what the girls can do in national defense. The climax was reached when they handed me a blank check, drawn to the order of the people of the United States, on the hours of their service.

In the evening I went to a meeting called by a group of people who wanted to consider the advisability of forming a municipal assembly in the District of Columbia. I was astonished at the number of organizations existing in the District. Many of them are civic organizations which are federated and which, if they agreed on any one thing, ought to be able to bring a great deal of influence to bear on the District government and the committees in Congress which deal with the District matters.

Since I am only a temporary resident of the District, I feel that I have very little right to take part in anything affecting the citizens of the District, except as the District is of importance and interest to any citizen of the United States.

WHERE THE DISTRICT institutions are concerned, I have always felt that all citizens should take an interest in having here, models for the rest of the country; both for the value it would be to us in carrying back suggestions to our own states and communities, and because of the service we could render to observers from other countries. I have always found that I could learn things from other countries and would like to feel that we offered here our best in every field in the hope that we might be useful.

The people of the District must decide whether a municipal assembly would be a good instrument for them. I was certainly impressed by the number of organizations there seem to be in the district, and the small results they seem to achieve.

After this meeting, I attended the Bureau of Engraving and Printing Birthday Ball, which, like all the others, seemed to be better attended than last year.

YESTERDAY, Mrs. Montgomery Angell and I, with her two children, made a trip to Monticello. They stopped first at Mt. Vernon, and then I joined them. We were fortunate in having a beautiful day, which made a picnic lunch possible. After visiting Jefferson's home, which is always a joy to me, the children came back to Washington, while Mrs. Angell and I went to Richmond, Va., to attend a meeting of the newly organized Southern Electoral Reform League. I hope they will be successful in Virginia in having the poll tax removed, for I always feel that the state of Virginia should be a leader in all reforms.

GOVERNMENT SPARES
ASTOR HOUSE

Vincent Astor

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Vincent Astor was one of those who rendered assistance in the President's securing of naval bases, especially in Bermuda, in exchange for 50 U. S. destroyers. . . . After this was accomplished Astor was very much relieved . . . for it was a job well done. . . . Later, when the site for the Bermuda bases was mapped out, it was discovered that the plans provided for erection of an aviation field on Astor's Bermuda property—which would mean the destruction of his house and a filling-in-sand process extending into the sea . . . all of which meant huge, unnecessary expense. . . . Astor made no protest, preferring the sacrifice. . . . This week, however, other bases were selected, and the Astor home will remain.

FOREIGN DISPATCH:

Merrill Mueller, the INS correspondent in London reports his story: At an RAF aerodrome he watched a young aviator take off in a Hurricane and participate in a fight in which 12 Nazi planes were downed. . . . When the flyer returned he claimed that he had downed two of the planes himself. The commanding officer, however, credited him only with one plane. "We saw you get the first one," the officer explained, "but only one man saw you get the second plane—and two witnesses are required." . . . The young aviator went to the commissary and asked, "What's the matter?" Mueller asked him. . . . "Aw," replied the flyer—"next time you know they'll expect you to bring back scalps."

FINANCE DEPT.: Bill Perlberg, who will produce the movie adaptation of "Charley's Aunt," last night met Harold Cohen, drama critic for the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. "What's the highest price anyone ever paid to see a Broadway show?" asked Perlberg. Cohen pondered and answered, "I think it was $75, for Anna Held's premiere in New York." . . . "You're wrong," the producer informed. "It's $15,000." Jack Benny flew in from Hollywood this week to see "Charley's Aunt," which he's going to play in the movies. Jack had to give up his Sunday night broadcast to make the trip. Herbert Marshall is substituting for him. Jack gets $15,000 per broadcast.

LOCAL NEWS: Phil La Follette went to Washington to testify against the lend-lease bill at the Senate hearings. . . . When Edward Dwyer Dowling saw "Lady in the Dark," he said: "This will kill the talkies." . . . Bob Scott, son of Mabel Boll, has enlisted in the Army. Scott, who is suing the Club Cuba for $100,000 because of an alleged fight there, said: "For the first time in my life now, I'll be paid for fighting." . . . Al Bloomingdale has bought an interest in Luna Park. . . . Georgie Hale, the producer, will do the Dennis King show. Balanchine will direct the dances.

BOOK DEPT.: When Archibald MacLeish, the Librarian of Congress, met James Melton, the tenor told MacLeish: "What a job you're doing. Nobody ever Leash of the Library of Congress until you came along—and look at it now." . . . "Nobody ever heard of man, until Adam came along," said MacLeish, "—and look at man now."

BUSINESS DEPT.: In the movie trailer for the new George Bernard Shaw picture, Shaw tells the American audience: "This is a re-make of an old, stale play of mine. A short time ago you saw the movie 'Pygmalion,' which was a re-make of another old, stale play of mine. Shortly before that you witnessed a production of 'Heartbreak House,' also an old, stale play of mine. I'm sending to America all my old, stale plays. But that's a fair exchange—because America is sending over here all its old, stale destroyers."

HEALTH DEPT.: Last night Greta Garbo was escorted to La Martinique, where she was introduced to Danny Kaye. She complimented him upon his performance and then asked: "Where do you get your energy? How can you play a matinee, then an evening performance—and then do two shows in a night club?" . . . "I take a certain stimulant," Kaye told her. . . . "What kind?" Garbo persisted. . . . "Oh, a pill," said Danny, "a thing which comes in a box, which I buy at any drug store." . . . "Oh, by the way," introduced Garbo, thus reminded, "—this is Dr. Gaylor Hauser."

MONDAY MORNING MUSINGS: The Boston City Council, usually a colorful body, now has turned up a possible hit-song writer in its membership. . . . Councilor John C. Wickes, co-writer of "He's a Great American" (which is not about Wendell Willkie), is the tunesmith, and his non-councilmanic friend, Roger J. Magee, is Councilor John's collaborator.

THAT THE SONG HOLDS real promise of joining the best-seller class is deduced (by this corner) from the fuss being made over it currently by Bing Crosby's music-publishing firm, Santeley-Joy-Select, an ASCAP firm. . . . This company is really "plugging" the song.

IT RECEIVED attention at the President's Ball at the Boston Garden, and also at the New York anniversary party. . . . And now, ASCAP has sent out a story of the song's "background" through the society's own press department. . . . According to that dispatch, BMI, the broadcasters' music firm, had "first refusal" on the number.

IT WAS TURNED DOWN according to ASCAP—because BMI did not think President Roosevelt (for it is he who is the hero of the song) would be re-elected. . . . (This makes BMI a poor point-of-pickers regardless of how it does with songs). . . . The Santeley firm bought the number at first hearing, and the sides have begun to eliab. . . . Of course, you would not be hearing it on the radio.

SPEAKING OF "REBUSSALS," SAM GOLDWYN had first crack at Daphne du Maurier's "Rebecca," the novel from which was made the very successful picture of the same name. . . . Miss Du Maurier told Sam that she wanted $50,000 for the yarn—no more and no less. . . . Mr. Goldwyn, being in a bargaining mood and hoping that Daphne was in the same, offered her $30,000. . . . Word of the price asked by the English author reached David O. Selznick. . . . He made out a $50,000 check and the deal was closed at once.

AL JOLSON'S PERSONAL popularity along Broadway suffered by his decision to close "Hold Onto Your Hats," and a suit by his partner, Georgie Hale, the dance-director, seeks $100,000 in cash from Mr. Jolson on the grounds that Al was not too ill to continue the show's successful run. . . . Among the 150 persons placed "at liberty" with the mammy-singer's insistence on tripping South to Miami was Jinx Falkenberg, whose name, by the way, has been linked romantically with that of the aging Mr. Jolson.

MISS FALKENBURG IS THE MOST-publicized model in the country today. . . . She had a "walk-on" role in the Jolson show, and she made a successful film test a few weeks ago. . . . But Hollywood, which is the pretty Falkenberg child's hometown, is not ready for her professional services as yet.

SHELDON H. FAIRBANKS, A VERY ALERT showman, is. . . . He telegraphed an offer to Miss Falkenberg today. . . . If she has some time on her hands, where better a place could she pass it than amid the wild life of the Boston Sportsmen's and Boat Show? . . . One of Mr. Jolson's reputed objections to Jinx, as a romantic companion, was the inability to meet on common conversational ground.

"HOW FAR CAN YOU get intellectually," (Mr. Jolson was reported to have inquired) "with a girl who talks about the best place to string a racquet?" . . . Jinx,

PATRICIA PROCHNIK
Gets Boston Singing Offer

in Broadway's leary eyes, is a notorious inhabitant of the great outdoors. . . . She is a champion swimmer, a crack shot, a horsewoman, a fisherwoman and a huntress. . . . Above all this, she is gorgeous. . . . Mr. Fairbanks thinks that she should ornament the Sportsmen's Show, which lies to New York after its Boston run.

SIGNS OF SUMMER: Ed Wyner, operator of the Ritz-Carlton, is contemplating his Roof season, and an offer has been forwarded to pretty Patricia Prochnik, the vocalizing daughter of Austria's last ambassador to America. . . . Patricia is singing in Washington.

Hollywood Today

GENE TIERNEY IS O. K.;
HARVARD ALL WET

By Louella O. Parsons

Gene Tierney

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 3 (INS). Neither the fans nor 20th Century-Fox are paying a note of attention to the smart Harvard boys' crack on the Harvard Lampoon that Gene Tierney is the worst discovery of the year. Everyone takes issue on that, for despite the Harvard sarcasm she is a fine actress both on the stage and screen. In fact, for my money she is one of 1940's best discoveries and, I believe, a potential 1941 star. "Red Cross Girl," by Steve Fisher, a Cosmopolitan writer, has just been purchased for her.

Fisher came into prominence when he wrote "Bugle in the Night," an unusual story, for Cosmopolitan. A professor of Somerset Maugham, he is bound for the Coast to write the screen play on "Red Cross Girl," three plays a newspaper woman who goes to Portland, H. H. Holland, Denmark, etc., on assignment. Harry Joe Brown is the associate producer.

ANNE GWYNNE

HOPE ANNE GWYNNE, who was so popular as Deanna Durbin's on-screen pal in "Spring Parade," isn't so popular. She gets her break co-starring with Brod Crawford in a little opus titled "Back Cat," which starts Feb. 12 with 13 members in the cast. To add to the bad luck angle, Director Al Rogell is having everybody break a mirror and walk under a ladder the first day of shooting. Don't know how you feel, but it sounds all right to me. I walked under a ladder once and got my first raise as a gal reporter. Maybe it will be equally lucky for the little Gwynne girl, for I think Universal has something in this blonde charmer.

I HAD A SNEAKING idea the fans liked "Hullabaloo," panned by most of the critics, when Virginia O'Brien was given a rousing reception in Camden right after the movie played there. You wouldn't believe it possible from a critic's standpoint that "Hullabaloo" has grossed $600,000 and it only cost $300,000. Yet it is apparently what the public likes so a series is now under discussion with Frank Morgan as the central figure and Virginia and Dan Daily, Jr., again featured. "Hullabaloo" again convinces me that Hollywood doesn't always know what Mr. and Mrs. Public like, for personally I wouldn't have given you a dime for the success of that movie.

ERNEST HEMINGWAY is like all writers. He works while he rests. Just after telling me that he wasn't going to write a line for a long time, an idea for a movie came to him about an American soldier of fortune on the Burma Road. He waxed more and more enthusiastic with the result that Y. Frank Freeman, quietly said, "We'll take your story," so Hemingway and his bride, the former Martha Gellhorn, sailed for China with a Paramount assignment. This will be the first story of the Japanese-Chinese conflict written by an eyewitness. The only persons to be signed, so far, for "For Whom the Bell Tolls," is Akin Tamiroff as Pablo. In all the discussion of a "Maria," Blake McVeigh comes out with a great suggestion—Steffi Duna!

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: Jack Benny and Bill Perlberg, who flew East to see if "Charley's Aunt," would be Jack's next, were forced down in a terrific storm near Tucson, Ariz. Jack was scared pink and he said "Let's turn back! I'll not only do the play but I'll kiss Charley's aunt in any corner drug store window you name."

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: George Sanders has become aware of Eleanor Troy, Florentine Gardens chorus girl; Kay Francis and Fritz Lang, who were inseparable for many weeks, talking things over at one of the popular cafes; Jane Russell and Bob Waterfield, half-back at U. C. L. A., have discovered each other; Janet Gaynor, who shouldn't be off the screen the way she looks now, will make a picture if the right one comes along; Jean Arthur and Frank Ross, who seem to have such good times together, very gay at the Scherazade; Mrs. Charlie Feldman, who went into the hospital for a check up, is home with an okay from her M. D.; the report that Lupe Velez and Big Boy Williams have said adieu, was denied by both over the telephone. I still will be surprised if they marry.

Bonnie Baker, Orrin Tucker at Paramount-Fenway Next

EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1931

Gay Comedy, Mystery Film Due Thursday

Gay comedy combined with exciting mystery is the diversified film fare at the Paramount and Fenway Theaters beginning on next Thursday.

"You're The One," Paramount's newest comedy hit, featuring Bonnie Baker, winsome little singer, handsome Orrin Tucker and his orchestra, both making their movie debuts, and the riotous Jerry Colonna, is the top feature.

The other picture is "The Lone Wolf Keeps a Date," in which fiction's most fascinating gentleman burglar, portrayed by Warren Williams, plays opposite young Frances Robinson, new screen "find."

"You're The One," announced as a breezy, fast-moving story concocted by Gene Markey, takes place mainly within the slightly crazy confines of Jerry Colonna's weight-reducing sanitarium, which he conducts as though it were a night club, offering Orrin Tucker and his orchestra and a giant floor show as entertainment.

Albert Dekker plays a rival orchestra leader, who tries to hold Bonnie Baker to a contract she has signed with him, when she would actually prefer to sing with Orrin's music crew.

Getting Bonnie out of the tangle provides some of the amusing situations in the picture. Among the new song hits which the picture introduces are "Strawberry Lane," "I Could Kiss You for That," "Gee, I Wish I'd Listened to My Mother," and "You're The One." In addition, Bonnie sings her famous "Oh, Johnny."

PAT O'BRIEN SIGNS
Pat O'Brien has been signed to a non-exclusive contract by Twentieth Century-Fox, the studio has announced. He will make two pictures annually for the company.

"YOU'RE The One" is the title of this movie; the sentiment's mutual with Bonnie Baker and Orrin Tucker, and the Paramount and Fenway are the places to see it next Thursday.

WEEK'S PLAYBILL

OPENING TONIGHT
COLONIAL — "Philadelphia Story," with Katharine Hepburn in the role she created two years ago in the Philip Barry stage success, plays a return engagement here following 52 capacity weeks on Broadway and a tour of the West and South that commenced last spring. Miss Hepburn's supporting cast includes Van Heflin, Joseph Cotten, Nicholas Joy, Viola Roache, Forrest Orr, Ruth Holden and Lenore Lonergan. The play was directed by Robert B. Sinclair and the settings were designed by Robert Edmond Jones.

CONTINUING
CIVIC REPERTORY — "Life With Father," the Howard Lindsay-Russell Crouse comedy hit co-starring Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern, goes into its 19th week here tonight. Scheduled to open in Philadelphia this month, but little time remains in which to catch this gayest comedy of the year.

TANNEN RETAINED
Charles Tannen, most recently seen in "The Grapes of Wrath" and "The Return of Frank James," has been signed for an additional year.

'Philadelphia Story' Reopens Here Tonight

When the hard-boiled magazine writer, Macaulay Connor, arrives in the home of the Seth Lords in Philip Barry's comedy, "The Philadelphia Story," reappearing at the Colonial tonight, to get the low-down on the social life of wealthy suburbanites 'round about the City of Brotherly Love, the audience is not a bit hesitant in recognizing that Barry is nicely ribbing a well-known periodical. Connor's magazine is "Destiny," and that's close enough to "Fortune" to be as plain as the Colonial signposts.

Russell's story is not confined to Quaker City environs but proved candid camera to players from other cities with suburban didoes very much like those among the Seth Lords, the Piddies and Drexels.

When the play opened in Philadelphia, there was considerable speculation as to the identity of the very families Barry had had in mind, and though the laughter was hilarious, a few taking their local misadventures wrote in the papers to say that Barry had mislabeled them.

Even the interior scene of the Lord home was said to be a duplication of an actual one.

George Jessel Is Tops In Club Mayfair Show

By SAM BERENSON

Not in many a long month has this village offered so starry a list of club entertainers as currently graces our after-dusk Rialto.

The salons are accentuating top-flight personalities, and the White Way is a-glittering from one end to the other... and so this suggestion for your date book: this week is the time to dust off the top-hat and visit the Hub's after-dark scene... you'll find it a swell take-in.

It's the original Copacabana Revue that aways into Tom Mare's delightful Beachcomber tonight, the same famed and colorful eye-popper that took Manhattan by storm when it appeared at Manhattan's Copacabana Club... this South American smash is one of the finest show values to be seen along the Rialto this season, unsurpassed for its blend of rhythm, sparkle, and loveliness... underscore this boldly on your date pad... two bands... Recommended ear-bending: Alvin Roy's waxing of "Tiger Rag"... Another of those fast Casa Manana shows styled in the familiar Jack Brown tempo pops up this evening at this delightful set-up spot... a Lou Steele presentation... which means accent on beautiful gals—and one destined for a high appeal with the after-dark set... a slick offering, with that torrid Lou Carter rhythm.

At the Versailles this week is funnyman Joe Kirk, one of the suavest of all comics... this young man has plenty of talent, ranking with the best the club has had this season... Joe was featured with "Hi-Ya Gentlemen"... another act that deserves worthy mention is the clever dance team of Buster and Billy Burrell... and the gay routine of the Wally Wanger girls... A new musical review swings into the Coconut Grove... featuring the Ten Broadway Chorus Girls... Paulina, direct from Chicago's Edgewater Beach Hotel, plus Goodrich & Nelson, and Ethel Lynn lead into a smartly tempo'd show bill... that capable Mickey Alpert rhythm.

Down the road a-piece at the Club Mayfair, the incomparable George Jessel continues to show this village exactly why he is rated as the ace of salon entertainers... this gifted-tongued personality has always been a favorite of ours, and it truly seems that never has he been in better form than at the moment... the Mayfair is jammed-packed nightly... so make this a MUST date for the week... a fine thing! Top-flight Havana salons are forced to import their talent... the States have grabbed off most of the better Conga-styled entertainers native to Cuba... No firmer handshakes were exchanged over the week-end than by George Jessel and Dr. and Mrs. Archie Alpert of Providence... friends from away back.

Never out-done in top-flight show attractions, the continental Latin Quarter parts the curtains tonight

KARLE ROHDE
Blinstrub's Maestro

on a gay and lovely tsétsék production that's as thrillingly lavish as the most critical gadabout could hope for... an exciting show, cast in the exotic atmosphere which the Quarter carries so well... an indispensable attraction for your entertainment pleasure... the twin music of Tony Bruno and Don Dudley... That sensational surge in popularity at the Westminster's Blue Room, traceable to the dazzling revues presented by Harry Drake, continues... and the word is about that Harry has concocted one of his very smartest for the current week... fast, colorful and a wealth of variety... the Jimmy McHale music.

Burt Mann's Guitar opens at Bob Appleton's Bradford Hotel "Circus Room" while Ruth Wallis doubles in song and the piano... Elwin Shaw's magic retains its appeal... That jive rhythm being served up by Ella Fitzgerald at the Brunswick's Bermuda Terrace is definitely as alluring, a bit of tune-spinning as the Village has seen in some time... an outstanding personality and a grand rhythm crew... Little Diddle, the septa Mass. ave. spot, reigns on as one of the town's most torrid stay-up spots... its rapid action and toe-tapping rhythm from start to finish with ten big acts packed into a razzle-dazzle evening... if you can stand this, you'll like it.

Sally Keith's tassel swishing remains a hold-over attraction at the Crawford House and once again Sally is backed up by a fast and furious revue that finds this hostelry shaking to the rafters... a marvelous take-in in one of the town's most torrid soirees... That calling place... Tom Stockley continues to head the new show at Ribby's Alston Cafe... the Monday Amateur Night's a hilarious event. At Harry Sher's Silver Dollar, starting this evening, a black and white revue featuring a cast of twenty-five fast and clever performers.

The Cave, Boston's new stay-up spot increases in popularity... an intimate setting and a delightfully appointed room... which adds up to as atmospheric rendezvous as can be found hereabouts... "I was thinkin'..."

By IZZY ORT

Oh my! Day by day, in every way I'm gettin' busier and my social life more complicated or somethin'. I jest come back from takin' in the Book Show and I'm all addled! I got a new shelf in my office and I need about four feet of books but I'm passin' up the new crop becuz I couldn't find any with enough nice colored pitchers. The Swin's men's show is a great take for guys like myself with plenty of red cor-pussicles—those are the ones in your blood that makes you healthy! I go for that log-rollin' stuff; it's like tap dancin' on a greased telegraph pole.

There's plenty of class in my Grill these nights. When I hired Rudy Bauer as new master of ceremonies, he wore in the first evenin' suit that's been on Essex Street in eighteen years, since a wedding party got lost in the traffic one time. Now Dancer Hal Lang is workin' in my Grill and he wears tails! That formal feelin' has swept over me and at 6:00 P. M. every night I put socks on!

Nelson's Fighther Cats, the two greatest feline scrappers since the Kilkenny Cats—Olav h' sholami!—will slug it out twice a night in my El Tropico Room beneath the palm leaves and exotic South Sea Island vegetation. They're sensational with a capital C!

Crowds are still wanderin' over nights to bend the ears to the music of Chick Harris' Gentlemen of Swing and to take in the fancy revues I'm featurin'. Everybody still agrees that the best fun in town can be found seven nights a week in my Grill and in the El Tropico Room mid-town, a trip and a stumble from Washington Street at 25 Essex St. near Wash. ## BLONDIE

—And See If I Care!

"YON'S THE ISLAND," cried Capt. Hort Ravenscroft. "Haul yer oars, Capt. McSwaggerty, and I'll steer you right into the inlet where we used to catch catfish when we were boys."

"If I ain't blind, and I ain't," said Captain Jule Axt, "somebody's here ahead of us. I see somethin' movin'."

Captain Alex McSwaggerty shifted his bulk around and squinted.

"Balad. It's a woman," he announced with disgust. "Why is it you find 'em everywhere, the women I mean. There goes a fine day's sport."

"And me lookin' forlaid," said Captain Ravenscroft, "to takin' my elv's off an' jumpin' into the old swimmin' hole again just for old sake's sake."

The three men, all on the downhill side of 60, scrambled ashore, Captain Ravenscroft as the only seafaring one lugging the tiller rope with him to tie their skiff snug to a willow that lifted a gaunted trunk at the water's edge.

"Do you fellows realize it's near half a century since we foregathered at this spot?" said Captain Jule Axt.

"Yes, and how we used to sit around, not only the three of us but a lot of other boys too that's gone now," quoth Captain McSwaggerty. "And we'd spin yarns of what we would all do when we got out into the great world. Ah, them were great days, golden days, and the warmth of them comes back to me now that I'm here again. Look, she's a rum! like she's scared, dodgin' amongst the trees."

This island, situated near a bend in the great river, the river that separated two states, was no more than a misplaced spit of land heavy with green woods and lush with grass with a narrow strip of sandy beach.

"Could there be folks livin' here?" Captain Ravenscroft turned to Captain Jule Axt as the sole member of the trio who had stuck close by the old home town.

Ravenscroft was lately come home from the West where he had served out a long term shipping all over the world. McSwaggerty had earned his captaincy as a policeman in a famous metropolis while Jule Axt's title had come from the Spanish-American War when he had commanded the local militia company.

They converged like three Indian scouts through the thick forest of trees in pursuit of the dodging wisp of skirt that identified their quarry as female.

MOLLIE SHEPARD

"Hay, you, come out o' there," McSwaggerty called when they had her cornered. "We won't hurt you."

She was a frightened wisp of a girl who stepped gingerly from the tall grass and moved hesitantly toward them. The sight of three grinning males who plainly had naught but good will in their hearts lent her courage. She said:

"I ain't scared for myself but jumpin' glory, Mike, yer right as rain. This one would be Carrie. Mollie never had but the one gal. Carrie—why, gal, you run away to the city here four years ago. What's up now?"

Her story was short. She had married a fellow—or thought she had. A bad egg. A very bad egg. And first thing she knew she found herself going along with a mob as tough and deadly that the police of the whole country were looking for them.

"Uh-huh," Capt. Mike broke in. "You don't need to tell me, Stoney Birdwell's gang. That's how I recognized you, Carrie. There's a gerly, "you coulda gone all the way to China and lived high or this."

"I know it. But I only been usin' enough to feed us. I aimed to give it back when I could. Stoney'll come huntin' me. He knows where I'll be 'cause once the gang used this island for a hideout after I told 'em about it."

"How long you been gone from Stoney?"

"Less'n a week. Him and the gang went out on a prow. They'll come lookin' here. But not in day-time. I got a skiff hid away and where and sleep."

The third night the three captains spent in the pup tent waiting for Stoney Birdwell there was grumbling.

"Lucky we ain't none of us got

Each captain had an automatic rifle that threw heavy slugs and, each carried two pistols as well. Better, they know how to use them. Flashlights revealed the whereabouts of the enemy.

Three rifles roared and all of them meant business. "Every one of these fellers is a killer," Cap Mike had warned. "We'll give them the same chance they'd give us which is none."

The three captains charged shouting for all they were worth. Voices shouted, "Hey, lay off, we surrender."

"Git back to your boat and lay down then," Cap Jule yelled, "and don't start nothin' funny or we'll open up them yellow bellies o'

"Please, don't hurt my baby." "Baby! Good jumping glory, where's it at?"

"Over here."

They followed her to a cleared space where a pup tent was screened behind thick foliage.

"Humph," Capt. Ravenscroft snorted. "Regular Moses in the bulrushes business. Cute little tyke. Miss—er—Missus. Yourn?"

"She nodded. "Three months old."

"Where's his pop at, then?" Cap. Jule Axt demanded.

"He—ain't here."

"That ain't tellin' us nothin'. I said where's he at?"

"I—dunno," said the girl, who was certainly under 20.

Cap. McSwaggerty had taken no part in the colloquy. He stood off to one side eyeing the girl intently.

The eagle eye of Mike McSwaggerty was famous. He had that valuable quality in a policeman, a photographic memory, which was the main reason why he had rounded out his years in harness as head of the Bureau of Missing Persons.

"Woman," said Cap. McSwaggerty, "haven't I seen you before?"

She eyed him back uneasily. "I dunno," she answered. "I know I've never seen you."

"I have not only seen you, Ma'am, but I've seen two of you. Do you mind, Mollie Shepard?"

"Mollie Shepard?" Cap Ravenscroft and Cap Axt uttered the name together. The girl shot McSwaggerty a quick, terrified glance.

"You boys'll mind Mollie," said Captain Mike. "She was Bully Shepard's girl—Bully, who used to swim with us right here on this island, though he was older'n the rest of us. Boys, this here gal is Bully Shepard's granddaughter — and Mollie's daughter. She's one of our own people."

Cap Jule Axt nodded slowly. "By picture of you in the police files with Stoney."

"She might be tied up to a crook but she's still one of our own folks," Cap. Jule Axt insisted stoutly.

"Jule's right," said Cap Ravenscroft, "we got to look after her."

"You're right, boys, no doubt about it," Cap Mike agreed, "but there's the law to be considered, too. Carrie, where's Stoney?"

"I don't know. Oh, honest I don't. All I know is that this is the only place in the world I had to come back to with my baby."

She led the three captains to a cache cleverly concealed behind the tent and dragged out three small canvas bags.

"Great licketygibbets, fellows, look!" Cap Jule cried. "Just money! More'n there is in the bull world. Looky!"

"Carrie," said Captain McSwag-

a wife," Cap Ravenscroft muttered. "They'd sure be askin' questions."

"Even blankets don't keep the rheumatiz from seepin' from the ground into my bones," Cap Axt complained.

"Shut up, you fellows," Cap McSwaggerty ordered. "You know how to use your guns, don't you? Well, what'll we do, call in the cops and let 'em make this pinch? Look, you rascalscapes, us boys used to set in this very spot and tell each other what we'd done in case of an Injun attack. Well, Stoney Birdwell's boys are wuss'n Injuns. Git to sleep. I'm on watch 'til 2 a. m."

Milk Enters The Picture

By ARLINE GOULD

A MILKY TINTED complexion is sure to be the cynosure of all eyes . . . and if you've always longed for one so exceedingly fair . . . learn a lesson from the beauties of past ages who used . . . milk . . . to achieve it!

You might take the old-fashioned way . . . and use gallons of it . . . or you may do it in the streamlined modern manner . . . using a "dry skin emulsion" which signals the first successful use of large quantities of milk in an improved, scientific cosmetic!

This is one cosmetic that we like to be lavish with . . . because there are so many things it will do . . . and you'll also get the nice feeling that you're pampering your skin in a way which will show a real effect.

It's a thick, daisy white, heavy liquid "cream" . . . in which, for the first time in history 80 per cent pasteurized milk has been thoroughly utilized . . . and guaranteed against chemical instability, or "spoiling," which has prevented all preceding attempts at this use of milk from being successful.

It's used after cleansing . . . to give a softening treatment which when the cream is wiped away leaves a satiny, shining, non-greasy base for make-up that's miraculously translucent-looking.

You'll want to use it on your hands . . . yes, it might seem a mite extravagant . . . but it isn't. And on your neck . . . and as a non-greasy night treatment as well!

You're extremely apt to become a confirmed addict once you've tried this dry skin emulsion . . . and you'll be the winner, for your skin will look . . . it's a promise . . . more finely clear after a few weeks' use than you'd dream was possible.

If you'd like complete details on this new dry skin emulsion made of milk and non-greasy vegetable oils, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4060, except weekends, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ON SOME fortunate women, like Carole Lombard, the milky fair complexion has been endowed . . . one reason why she photographs so devastatingly . . . but if yours is inclined to a sallow tint or fine lines . . . you may improve it immeasurably through the use of milk . . . because for the first time ever, cosmetics with 80 per cent of milk content have been perfected . . . to lavish their benefit on your skin . . . and today Arline Gould describes one of them.

Patriotic Songs Revived To Bolster Defense Spirit

OUR GLORIOUS national anthem, "The Star-Spangled Banner!" But how many know all its stirring words, the story behind it?

With our patriotic songbook, you may refresh your memory, learn anew America's rich store of song—song that in these perilous times has deeper significance than ever.

Thrilling is the story of "The Star-Spangled Banner!" During the night of the historic siege of Fort Mifflin in 1814, a young American prisoner, Francis Scott Key, watched aboard an enemy vessel. At dawn, when he saw our flag was still flying, he penned the immortal lines:

"Oh! say, can you see by the dawn's early light, What so proudly we hatted at the twilight's last gleaming? Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight, O'er the ramparts we watch'd were so gallantly streaming—" Another great song is "Columbia, The Gem of the Ocean." It begins:

Cooking Economy Meat Cuts Savory Dishes

By MARTHA LEE

IF ECONOMY cuts of meat are properly cooked and well seasoned they can be just as popular as the more expensive ones—and they are just as nutritious. Economy cuts are usually tougher than prime cuts, with more sinew and more bone. Their texture, too, is never as fine-grained. Because of these characteristics, cheaper cuts require special cooking and special seasoning. Allow a longer cooking period and always cook with moisture in the pan, for slow cooking with moisture makes tough meats juicy and tender.

IRISH STEW

A SAVORY Irish stew is high on the list of appetizing dishes, and what flavor it has when seasoned properly! Buy two pounds of lamb to serve 4 or 5 people—from the neck, shank, shoulder, breast or flank. Wipe the meat with a damp cloth and cut into small pieces. Cover it with boiling water and simmer, covered, about one hour, then add the following vegetables: cut or sliced julienne.

- 1 cup carrots
- 1/2 cup turnips
- 1 onion
- Then:
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 bay leaf
- 2 tbsp. prepared mustard

FLANK STEAK FRICASSEE

There is no bone in flank steak, therefore, one pound will serve three people. Buy quantity as desired. Have the market cut through the center to make two thin steaks, then cut each into serving sized pieces. Spread each with a rich brown prepared mustard. Roll in flour. Brown in a frying pan in hot fat to a crispy brown. Add 1 1/2 cups of milk, water or tomatoes for every 2 pounds of steak, cover with 1 1/2 cups of well washed rice.

Spinkle with salt, pepper, paprika and dot with butter. Cover tightly and simmer 1/2 hour. Uncover. Place in the oven to dry the rice for 1/2 hour. Turn out on a platter to serve with meat topping the rice. A rich and delicious meal, guaranteed to please any man!

CHUCK ROAST (Pot Roast)

Spinkle the roast with salt and pepper, then spread with a mellow rich prepared mustard. Drizzle with flour. Brown in hot fat in roasting pan on top of the stove. Add water to cover the bottom of the pan. Set the lid in place, and roast at moderate temperature on top of the stove, if using an iron Dutch oven, or in the oven. Allow 1/2 hour for each pound of meat.

SMOTHERED BEEF ROLLS

- 1 skirt steak
- 1 tbsp. flour
- Prepared mustard
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 2 onions
- 3 celery stalks
- 3 carrots
- 1 cup tomato juice

Cut skirt steak after membrane has been trimmed off into four pieces. Coat generously with prepared mustard. Cut carrots into strips and roll with cut celery inside of meat. Fasten firmly with string or skewers. Brown sliced onions in hot drippings and pour rolls. Transfer onions, rolls and drippings to a casserole or baking dish. Add tomato juice, salt and pepper and bake in moderate oven about an hour and a half, basting frequently. After cooking 40 minutes, add peeled potatoes to bake in juice. Add more juice or water if necessary. Serve on a platter surrounded with potatoes and gravy.

As the Greater Boston Community Fund rolled up to its final "Dutch treat" report luncheon this noon at the Chamber of Commerce, Henry R. Gould, general chairman, estimated today that the campaign had secured a total of $4,125,000.

Among the large personal subscriptions announced today by the Community Fund is one of $7500 from Francis A. Countway, head of Lever Bros., and another of $1000 from his sister, Sandra Countway.

The official figure to be announced at the luncheon will be the last audited report until the campaign total is added up at the final dinner, to be held Wednesday evening at 6:30 in the Hotel Statler.

Among the subscriptions to be included in the Community Fund total today is one from Mister Howard Fales, 42 Torrey st., Dorchester.

"This is my contribution. It isn't very much but my school teacher said that every cent does a lot," young Fales wrote.

Inside the letter was seven cents he had saved.

Devens Men at Ease As YD Speeds Up

Some 10,000 proud wearers of the YD insignia got up with the bugler at Camp Edwards today, but at Ft. Devens it was a vastly different story.

While the men of the famed Yankee Division began testing their muscles as the rigid training program started, the boys at Ft. Devens merely rested.

But starting Thursday, the Ft. Devens men will get the workout of their lives, for then New England's third and fourth induction parades will get under way.

In preparation for the huge task of receiving thousands of draftees, and regular soldiers, too, the high command gave the weary soldiers at Ft. Devens a three-day leave.

WORK AHEAD
Ft. Devens officials made it clear, however, that the thought of the work ahead was not getting them down.

In fact, they said they are prepared to handle as many men daily as the various New England induction centers and draft boards can send them.

This number may reach as high as 500 a day, they added. This means the official reception center not only will outfit and process that many selectees, if necessary, but will also arrange for transfers of an equal number from time to time.

The third draft call will start Thursday and send a total of 5029 draftees. Ft. Devens way, while the fourth draft call is slated to begin on Feb. 15. The latter calls for 4500 men.

After a week-end of visiting with friends and relatives, the YD boys seemed eager to get down to the business which sent them there—ones year's military training.

ACTIVE WEEK-END

While some 1500 look advantage of week-end leaves to journey to Boston, a majority of the YD men stayed at Camp Edwards, where Catholic and Protestant chaplains officiated at inspiring services.

At Catholic services in the regimental recreation hall, attended by Maj.-Gen. Roger W. Eckfeldt and his staff, Lieut.-Col. Daniel J. Lynch, S. J., of Boston College, regimental chaplain, said it is the duty of every soldier to "renew every temptation in carrying out his chosen duty."

Lieut. William Abbot of 101st Medical Corps, told Protestant members of the division that self-discipline to duty will bring a personal contentment that nothing else can give a soldier.

HIS JOB "TO OBEY"

"It is the job of the soldier," he said, "to obey, instantly and without reservation, not for the sake of reward, but as a sacred duty."

With nearly 3500 visitors in camp, a brief "scare" was caused when Corp. James H. Higgins of Co. H, 101st Infantry, Cambridge, came down with mumps, necessitating the quarantining of 35 of his company mates in two barracks.

Army medical officers, after a quick examination, announced that there was little danger of its spreading and that the men will be held under "protective quarantine" for 10 days.

'One-a-Week' Bandits Sought in Holdups

Four "one-a-week" bandits were sought by officers today following the $200 holdup of a small store on Broadway, Cambridge, owned by Morris Lichter.

In what police believe was their fourth holdup in as many weeks, the quartet confronted Lichter when he was counting week-end receipts and after rifling the cash drawer and the victim's pockets the bandits escaped in a waiting car.

SALE OF HEARST ART OBJECTS OPENS IN N.Y.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—The "for sale" sign goes up today on 10,000 objects d'art in perhaps the most important sale in American history. Fabulous treasures from the $50,000,000 collection of William Randolph Hearst may be had at bargain-counter prices in two department stores.

You can buy paintings and tapestries, tables and tinklers and other precious masterpieces of the old world for a fraction of their cost to the publisher of attention who amassed them.

The attention of the art world is centered on what disposition awaits two of the most valuable items in the giant sale.

First of these is a Van Dyck painting dated 1631 and depicting Queen Henrietta, Jeffrey Hudson and a monkey. Hearst paid $50,000 for it. It's yours for $157,500.

Then there is a set of Flemish tapestries going for $120,551, if all are purchased as a group.

Also, if you have $50,000 and space for it—and want it—you can become the proud owner of a rare old twelfth century Cistercian monastery brought from Spain in 1327 in 11,000 packing cases. The crates are still in a Bronx warehouse in case you want to take it home.

BILL CORUM SAYS:

Fans Want Davis Back; Greek Fund Match Bid

NEW YORK, FEB. 3.—We are glad to report that the majority of boxing fans seem to be in accord with our recent suggestion that Al (Bummy) Davis be reinstated by the New York State Boxing Commission for a re-match with Fritz Zivic in behalf of the Greeks, whose word for it is courage.

If the match can be made, and we believe it can in view of its purpose, the Greeks will have a fight for themselves. In addition, that is, to the one they are making in behalf of world liberty and democracy.

You may well recall that when we suggested Davis' reinstatement, we were frank to say that the request marked a complete about face on the part of this column. After the Davis-Zivic fiasco, we said in the heat of our indignation that we would never mention Al's name here again until he had rehabilitated himself. Atoned for his disgraceful performance.

Bummy, like as not, would have gone right on living had we made good our "dire threat." But even before this idea of striking some small blow on behalf of liberty by campaigning for Al's reinstatement came to us, we had begun to wonder how he could rehabilitate himself as a fighter if he never got the chance.

Now it just doesn't stand to reason that the Boxing Commission would, or even could, keep a 21-year-old boy from fighting for the rest of his life because he lost his temper and struck a series of intentional foul blows. Even though this willful and senseless exhibition might conceivably have precipitated a riot and serious consequences.

It chances that it didn't. Obviously, if all of us were punished for things we might have done, we could all be in jail. We might kill somebody the next time we drive our car too fast.

Ah, Yes, What Might Have Been

WHAT BROUGHT this to mind was that one writer, bitterly opposed to Al's being reinstated even if it meant the invasion of the United States, went into gruesome detail about all the dire things that could have happened as the result of Al's flying off the handle.

I repeat that might-have-beens mean nothing. The truth was that nothing serious did occur. And the further truth was that Davis was the only real sufferer, though all agree that others involved were not entirely blameless, including Zivic.

I was not wholly accurate in saying in my previous essay on the subject that 17,000 fans got cheated out of a fight they had paid to see. It's true that they didn't see a very dignified exhibition of the Manly Art. But they did get plenty of excitement for their money. And excitement is the chief lure of all sports fans.

What I'm saying is that if Zivic, or Davis, had knocked out his rival in the first flurry of punches, the 17,000 would have got even less fight for their money and not nearly as big a bang. This was one of those wild affairs that the fans love to remember they saw. So that they can talk about it and argue about it, of course.

In a score of letters from fans who indicated that they had seen the fight, only one correspondent appeared to feel that he should get his money back. He also wanted to call in the District Attorney. Heaven knows what for. And yet I'd not be too surprised if he were pinned down, it wouldn't turn out that he "saw the fight on his radio."

My mail has taught me that the radio customer can be a hard man to please.

They're Not Fooling

THEY WRITE in to complain and to tell you to tell Stoneham and Barlow and MacPhail, or whoever, that they are going to stop listening to their games if such and so isn't done. And they mean it.

Which is beside the point. Probably because he carries his own noisy cheering section and attracts many others, who come to root against him, Davis is about the best box-office draw in this district. That was one of my reasons for suggesting this match. I could go to Mike Jacobs without blushing and without putting the arm on him for part of the proceeds from a match already made, if I could succeed in getting Davis reinstated.

Here would be one instance where a promoter would get something for himself by promoting a charity fight. A fight that might very well pack the Polo Grounds, to say nothing of M. S. G.

Without a charity angle, either. The committee for the sorely needed Greek fund wouldn't have to do any worrying about selling tickets for this one. It'll stand 'em in the aisles if we can swing it.

As for swinging it, I can report some progress. I would not want

SOX SELL PITCHER HEVING TO INDIANS IN CASH DEAL

EVENING AMERICAN, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1941

The Red Sox continue to clean house.

Today, Manager Eddie Collins announced the sale of Pitcher Joe Heving to the Cleveland Indians in a straight cash transaction.

Heving is the fourth veteran hurler turned loose by the club to date. Jim Bagby was sent to Cleveland with Fritz Ostermuller and Duffy Galehouse going down the taxi to the St. Louis Browns.

Ex-hurler, the Red Sox manager, met in conference on the flock of young pitchers that will don the Sox spangars this year.

Heving had a good year in 1940, posting from the record of 12 wins and seven losses for 29 games. According to the roster Joe is 36 years old and from all indications had outlived his usefulness with the Jersey club.

He had a reputation of picking his opponents, which apparently didn't set well with Manager Joe Cronin.

JOINED SOX IN 1938

The present Cronin from Covington, Ky., came up to the Sox from Milwaukee in August of 1938 and was largely responsible for the Cronin landing in second place that year.

He's being let out because Joe Cronin, who had led to stringing along with rookie pitchers this coming season, wants to reduce to a minimum his quota of veteran hurlers so as to be that much easier for him to stick to his intentions.

Oddly enough, in returning to Cleveland Heving is going back to the club that once in 1938 sent him back to the Sox and made it possible for the Sox to acquire his services.

The club owners will remain in the city until tomorrow when the annual league schedule meeting will convene. The schedule will be announced Wednesday.

Joe Louis Going Back? Experts Can't Agree

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (INS)—One of the hottest pugilistic debates to develop in months has been raging around here since Friday night, with the sports experts, as they are called, split into opposing factions on the question of whether Joe Louis has slipped or is fighting with his same old vigor.

The heavyweight champion has brought on the deluge of words pro and con by virtue of his two most recent performances—against Al McCoy at Boston in December and against Red Burman here.

Louis didn't look too good against McCoy. Against Burman, Louis was as good as ever to some and unimpressive to others in scoring a lousy five round knockout.

John Roxborough, co-manager of the champion, stepped into the discussion today with this observation.

"We were perfectly satisfied with Joe's showing and we don't feel that we have a thing to worry about in the rest of his four fights through June when he will take on Billy Conn."

It may be significant that, after setting Burman up with a terrific right to the chin in the fourth, in the next round Louis scored his first knockout with body punches.

Chilean Skier Crashes Tree, Badly Injured

NORTH CONWAY, N. H., Feb. 3 (AP)—Julio Vegers, 23, a member of a Chilean ski team touring United States skiing centers, was injured seriously today when he crashed into a tree on a slope at the top of Cranmore mountain.

With other members of the seven-man Chilean team, Vegers was skiing down the slope when he apparently lost control, according to team Capt. Eugenio Errazuriz.

Vegers was brought down the mountain in a toboggan by members of a ski patrol, and was taken to a hospital.

By JACK CONWAY

EN ROUTE TO Florida—This column was written as I headed in the general direction of Hialeah Park and its pink flamingoes. I shall stop at numerous other places before I reach Hialeah, but if there was not a horse track in Florida I would probably be going to some other place.

Like a great many other people who go to Florida in the winter, I talk about the white, glistening sand, the cool nights, the wild life of the Everglades, the beauty of the orange groves and of the enchanting tropical trees and bushes. These wonders of nature all have their charms, but I confess that they would not be sufficient to cause me to go to Florida if it were not for the horse racing, and the fact that in a few weeks I shall be able to see the Red Sox in action at Sarasota.

I have been amused reading about some of the alleged grief that has been coming out of Hialeah Park. People fighting their way through ice and snow in the North and trying to keep enough oil or coal on hand to keep their homes warm are supposed to get excited because the attendance at Hialeah Park is off 7 per cent while the mutuel handle has dropped 11 per cent.

This probably means that Hialeah Park instead of making $600,000 will have to struggle along on a mere $500,000 profit. I refuse to do any weeping for race tracks which on the whole have been doing better financially than any other sports promotion.

When Rip Valenti was trying to pump a little life into the boxing game in Boston during the low of the depression, it frequently cost him $1000 to $3000 to watch his own show. His losses over a period of several years ran into high figures, but yet he never complained. I do not like to think that the persons around boxing and some of the other major sports have more sporting blood in their veins than the owners of race tracks.

Hotels After All Must Have People

EVEN AS I move South by auto, I can hear the words of sadness uttered by Miami Beach hotel men. Business has not been as good this season as they would have liked to have seen it.

During the past three years the principal business of Miami Beach has been the building of hotels. Hotels have gone up by the dozens. Apparently nobody gave any consideration to the necessity of having customers to fill the hotels. After all, a few people have to work and cannot take time out to hop to Florida.

When European travel stopped and many people decided to do their vacationing in the United States, Florida expected to get all the winter business. It did pretty well in this respect last season.

Then the defense program started, and the business men who liked to go to Florida found they had rush orders to fill. It was necessary for them to remain at home. They decided it was much better business to get their recreation in their local communities.

It is expected that things will pick up this month. The hotel rates have anyhow.

In Florida, February has always been the big month. With the arrival of March, people start thinking of Atlantic City, the St. Patrick's Day parade in South Boston and such things.

Auto Trip South Is Pleasant

I HAVE BEEN going to Florida on and off during the last 20 years, and this is the third time I have made the journey by automobile. If one is not trying to establish new speed records, a trip South by auto is comfortable, while one can get a much better idea of local conditions.

I like to stop off and see the local spots of interest, and to talk to men and women about the things that interest them. I have been surprised to find that some folks are not even remotely interested in things which I consider quite important.

As one rides through the country, one realizes what a marvelous land we live in. One becomes certain of its unity and strength, and of the marvelous opportunities for work and educational improvement it gives to all.

Conditions in the South are much more prosperous than they were in the days following the World War. Many new industries have moved South, while owners of plantations now grow other things than cotton.

Ball Clubs Still Favor Florida

THE BALL CLUBS still favor Florida as a training spot despite the fact the Bees have quit Bradenton and are headed for San Antonio, Texas. The club owners admit the sandy soil of Florida injures the legs of their expensive athletes, but the players like the sun and the chance to practice almost every day.

After a few vacation days, I'll start writing columns from Florida. Incidentally "Mr. Boston" was the first newspaper column to be filed daily by wire out of Florida. That was back in 1929 when Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling fought at Miami Beach. Since then dozens of national columnists winter in Florida.

Billy Evans Wants Elmira Franchise

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (AP)—Club owners of the Eastern Baseball League have voted to give the Brooklyn Dodgers, who have maintained an Elmira, N. Y., "farm" club for the past few seasons, a "reasonable time" in which to decide whether to sell the franchise, operate in Elmira or to shift to some other city.

Billy Evans, former director of the Boston Red Sox farm operation, has been negotiating for the purchase of the franchise.

TAILORS SKATE AT DERBY 33

By WALTER KILEY

It is with pardonable pride that the American-Record today reports that Megan Taylor of Great Britain, world figure-skating champion, will play the headline role in the Silver Skates Derby at Boston Garden one week from next Sun day.

Miss Taylor, attractive 20-year-old brunette, won the international title first in Stockholm in 1938 and again the following year in Prague.

The English girl, rated by many of the ice experts as a better skater than La Henle, landed in San Francisco aboard the S. S. Lurline only a few days ago, accompanied by her father, Phil Taylor, England's foremost exhibition skater and teacher, and her mother. They came fresh from long theatrical triumphs in Australia.

PERENNIAL SECOND

Immediately on arrival in America, Megan accepted the American-Record's wire inviting her to perform in the annual Silver Skates classic at the Garden, and she likewise advised that her famous dad would do his amazing "stitts on skates" stunts, which are said to be breath-taking in daring.

Megan's ice career reads like a fairy story. Her dad took her under his skating tutelage when she was only five. At 11 she was competing for the world title—but always the incomparable Sonja Henle stood between her and first place.

That went on for five years—Sonja first, Megan second. At length the London papers took to calling Megan "Little Miss Second Best" just as United States papers referred to Helen Jacobs as "Miss Runner-Up," because she couldn't beat Helen Wills Moody at tennis.

Megan finally came into her own in 1938 at Stockholm after Sonja had turned professional and began to roll up her first million in the movies.

Now Megan was world champion, and they no longer called her "Little Miss Second Best." She was "Queen Megan," and those who have seen her in her most recent performances believe she has more actual artistry and talent than Sonja in her palmiest days.

Tickets on Sale

Silver Skates Derby tickets went on sale for the first time today. They may be purchased at the Boston Garden, Boston Arena or at James W. Brine Sports Goods Co. on Summer st. The Derby is scheduled for the Boston Garden on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 16.

Reserved seats are priced at 55 cents. Others are 44 cents, and children 14 and under will be admitted for 30 cents. There will be no higher prices.

Miss Taylor turned pro a few months ago and loves the freedom of her new attachments. It gives her time to devote to other sports hobbies in which she's proficient: horseback riding, tennis and swimming.

WILL STAY IN U. S.

Megan's climb to fame and to world recognition was one long gruelling grind. She tells about it so that our New England skaters who will be competing in the Silver Skates Derby may learn that each word alone will bring success.

"We had no outdoor rinks in London so I learned on indoor rinks in the summer, and then Dad and Mother took me to St. Moritz each winter. For the big competitions I would start to condition ten months in advance."

"I had to skate eight full hours daily and spend another hour on my bad instruction. It was pretty awful at times but the time and effort paid dividends eventually. It was my greatest thrill when I finally won the world title."

The present occasion marks Megan's second visit to America. She came here first for the Olympic games at Lake Placid in 1932.

CAGE TOURNEY MARCH 29

The National Collegiate Athletic Ass'n basketball tournament will open in Kansas City, Mo., March 29. Indiana University is the defending titleholder.

THE SKATING TAYLORS—Phil Taylor and famous daughter, Megan, both of whom will compete in American-Record Silver Skates carnival at Garden on Sunday, Feb. 16. Miss Megan is world champion figure skater. Her father's "Stitts on Skates" is a most daring stunt.

PICTURE STORY—Here's your three-picture introduction to Larry Powell, California youngster who joins the Red Sox pitching staff this spring. Larry won Coast League fame with the Seals. His screwball toss blinded the enemy. Bobby Johnson, San Francisco Seals trainer, gives Larry's pitching arm a thorough limbering at Boyes Hot Springs, Seals' training camp. Powell will report at Sarasota fit to make a good impression from the start.

GREAT TRIBUTE PAID VETERAN BOB QUINN

*Bob Quinn is a veteran bold
Who has stood by his guns, hot or cold.
Though stung with the Bees
He still strives to please—
A guy with a heart of pure gold.*

—GEORGE E. PHAIR.

By JOE CASHMAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—With that deserved jingle staring up at him from a page of the souvenir score-card and more than a thousand baseball dignitaries and fans on their feet cheering him, J. A. (Bob) Quinn, 71-year-old president of the Boston Bees, was at a loss for words for the first time in his 55-year baseball career at the 18th annual dinner of New York chapter Baseball Writers Association of America.

"Baseball writers not only in New York but everywhere else have a deep and lasting affection for Bob Quinn," said Toastmaster Sid Mercer in his introductory remarks, "for we have found him to be one magnate who never went back on his word. He hasn't had the success that others have enjoyed but he's always stayed in there battling. This honor should have gone to him long before this."

Charlie Segar, chairman of the New York chapter, picked up where the toastmaster left off when called on to make the presentation.

"This duty," said Segar, "is the most pleasant I've ever been called upon to perform at one of our dinners. In presenting this plaque to Bob Quinn we're giving it to one of the grandest guys we've ever run across in baseball. And it's our earnest hope that baseball will be honored by his presence for many years to come."

It was at this point that the "mikes" were turned over to Bob and he momentarily muffed them.

BOB LOST FOR MOMENT

But, eventually, habit mastered emotion and the beloved "prexy" of the Allston Swarm, on receiving the plaque which the Manhattan scribes award annually to a diamond notable for meritorious service to the game over a long period, told the audience that it was the greatest honor ever to be bestowed upon him.

"Words can't express my gratitude to the New York writers," he declared in a shaking voice, when he finally got going. "There are times when I find it no trouble at all to pop off but there are other occasions when I find it very difficult to speak, and this is one of the latter."

"I sat here earlier tonight thinking of my baseball past; way back to the days of my childhood in Ohio. I remembered when as an urchin I used to wonder whether I'd ever see the great City of New York. If anybody told me that the day would come when I'd be guest of honor at the biggest sports dinner in New York, I'd have told my parents I had been talking with an insane person."

"I couldn't but love and feel proud of a game that made this night come true for me. I hope I'll be able to continue in and do things for baseball as long as I have my health."

"More than that, far more, I hope baseball, the one and only real American game, goes on through troubled times and calm. Goes on, I mean, not through next year, the next decade or the next century, but goes on until the Supreme Arbitrator calls the game because of darkness.

SPEECH WELL RECEIVED

"No honor I have ever received has pleased me more. That goes, too, for every member of my family, which makes me all the happier."

"I wish I could express in words the feelings in my heart. I can't. But I promise I'll be appreciative as long as I live."

The rafters shook with applause for several minutes after the Quinn speech had brought a great dinner to a close.

Honored with the Bees' president was the youthful Bob Feller, fireball mound marvel of the Cleveland Indians, to whom the Scribes presented a trophy as the outstanding major league player of 1940.

The featured speaker was Quentin Reynolds, former baseball writer and now famed war correspondent, who told of his personal experiences covering the "Bombing of London," the story of the century.

O'ROURKE SHUNS PROS TO COACH N. Y. SCHOOL

By BILL GRIMES

"Chuckling" Charlie O'Rourke, the toast of all Boston College football enthusiasts, has been appointed by Archbishop Francis J. Spellman as an athletic director and head football coach at Cardinal Hayes Memorial High School in New York city.

Since he wound up his college football career in the Sugar Bowl, the "Chucker" has been swamped with offers to join the ranks of the professional pigskin chasers.

Sheldon Fairbanks, sponsor for the Boston Bears, tendered O'Rourke a contract for $6000. George Halas of the Chicago Bears offered him $3300. Then, too, the "Chucker" has been the recipient of offers from many public and private schools.

Three weeks ago, your operative contacted O'Rourke at the request of Bishop Spellman and explained the Cardinal Hayes Memorial High School offer.

In turn, the "Chucker" consulted Rev. Louis F. Kelleher, D.D., of St.

Catherine's in Somerville, and then went to his head coach, Frank Leahy, with his various propositions.

After carefully weighing all of the offers he had received, O'Rourke made a flying trip to New York last week and agreed to accept the berth.

When O'Rourke was first considered for the job, Bishop Spellman referred to him as the "dream boy"; a boy who had fumbled in the first period and then had come back and won the game in the final quarter; a boy who would be an inspiration to all youngsters because of his gridiron accomplishments; a boy who had reached stardom despite his lack of weight by virtue of his courage and resourcefulness.

When Leahy issues the call for spring practise at the Heights, O'Rourke will be a member of the coaching staff.

to put the Boxing Commission on a spot, any more than I would Jacobs. Even less, for I do contribute something to Mike's business by writing about his fights. In which connection, incidentally, I try never to overlook the fact that as a sports scribbler I'd have to write about something. Filling this space each day is my business.

I, however, know the three members of the commission well enough to know that they are broad enough to realize that the end in this case justifies the means. They were definitely right in their ruling on Davis. Yet I think they all realized that, under normal conditions, they would one day reinstate him.

Brown Didn't Blame Al Alone

AS A MATTER OF FACT, Bill Brown was quite properly more peeved at Al's seconds than at the boy himself. Seconds who have yet to deny that they sent "Bummy" out to get hunk in the second round for Zivich's holding and hitting in the first.

Whatever his faults, Davis is no such cutie as Fritzie. The only way he knew how to foul was in his own forthright, roughhouse way. And how he did it!

Brownville Al is in the Army now. By his own wish and act. Which shouldn't hurt his cause, either.

If we are going to get him for this, in its little way, important to humanity match, we are going to have to do it quickly. Would Feb. 21 be too early, we wonder? Remember the Greeks can't ask for any postponements.

Bruins Run String To 15 Games; Miss Chance for Record

By BILL GRIMES

In a listless and uninteresting contest, the Bruins extended their undefeated streak to 15 games and picked up a full game on Toronto Maple Leafs by defeating New York Americans, 4 to 1, at the Garden.

FANS SNUB WINNING BRUINS

Whenever the Bruins went on a winning streak in the old days it wasn't necessary to invite all the kids in the neighborhood to boost the attendance at home games. Going into last night's meeting with the Americans, the Rossmen had pussy-footed through 14 games without a defeat. But an SOS was sent out, and a couple of thousand youngsters were admitted for the federal tax. Still the crowd was far from capacity. So there must be something wrong with the present day N. H. L. hockey.

During their practice session before the game, the Bruins used one of Art Ross' new red pucks . . . Frank "King" Clancy refereed a fine game. He was on every play and nothing got by him which he thought should be called. In the second period Jack Crawford and Buzz Boll started to mix it up but they didn't show the "King" enough to be penalized.

For the first time in the 31 years he has been making ice, first at the old Arena and then at the Garden, Harry Allen did a back flip, a la "Doc" Moonen, between the second and third periods, while trying to shut off the water on the re-surfacing machine . . . Des Smith must have read the script. He didn't take the trouble to wear his helmet . . . Pete Slobodian, who is supposed to be tough, spent more time on his back than on his skates.

Pete Kelley started at left wing for the visitors, but immediately after the puck was dropped for the first face-off, he was replaced by "Bush-er" Jackson. That must be the very latest type of master minding . . . Chuck Conacher didn't make the trip with the Duitman. He is confined to a New York hospital with an infected ear . . . Jack Crawford played a swell game. His body checks were in rare form. Pete Slobodian was his pet hate.

Between the second and third periods, some kids discovered that Eddie Cummings' "mike" was open and unguarded. So they put on a side show which was an improvement on most of the hockey displayed during the evening. One youngster yelled through the "mike," "Hello, Ma, it was a great fight but I won."

The Bruins will be out to chalk up their 16th game without a defeat tomorrow night when they tackle Les Canadiens. GRIMES.

Although they won by a margin of three goals, the Rossmen had enough scoring opportunities to establish an all time high for goal getting.

They had no less than 58 shots on the Americans' nets, yet they missed Charlie Rayner, the young goalie, only four times. Rayner was credited with 12 saves in the first period, 25 in the second and 17 in the third, for a grand total of 54 stops.

Bill "Flash" Hollett, Woodie Dumart, Terry Reardon and Roy Conacher did the scoring for the Rossmen, and Pete Kelley saved the Americans from being shut out by tallying in the third period.

Frankie Brimsek had very little to do in the Bruins' nets. Capt. "Dit" Clapper, Des Smith, Jack Crawford and Hollett were so successful breaking up attacks that "Zero" had only 19 saves 16 of which were in the first and third periods.

The game opened at a slow pace and didn't get going until the third minute.

Bill Cowley grabbed the puck in his own zone and broke down the ice with "Dit" Clapper. At the New York defense, Cowley lost the puck but it was recovered by Clapper who shot it through Cowley's legs but right on Rayner.

When the Kraus came on, they stepped up the tempo of the game but were unable to beat Mr. Rayner. Shortly before half time, Des Smith drew a minor penalty for interfering with Buzz Boll, and the Bruins played it safe.

At 12:40, Hollett, Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer put on a three man attack, and the "Flash" came up with the first goal of the game.

In the second minute of the middle chapter, Woodie Dumart and Bauer combined for a pretty goal. Four minutes later, Reardon deflected a Clapper pass into the cage for the third Boston marker.

Just as the bell rang at the end of the second period, Bill Cowley passed out from behind the cage and Eddie Wiseman slapped the puck home, but this goal was disallowed as time had expired.

The Americans were the first to score in the final period. At 6:35, Hootley Smith started a play and passed to Lorne Carr as he raced across the Boston line.

Carr took a shot but Brimsek slid over and made a fine save, but before either he or Bauer was able to clear, Kelley pounced on the loose puck and scored.

Late in the period, Hootley Smith crashed into one of the goal up-rights during a Boston power play and was very fortunate to escape serious injury. With less than two minutes to go, Conacher, assisted by Cowley and Wiseman, scored the fourth and final Boston goal.

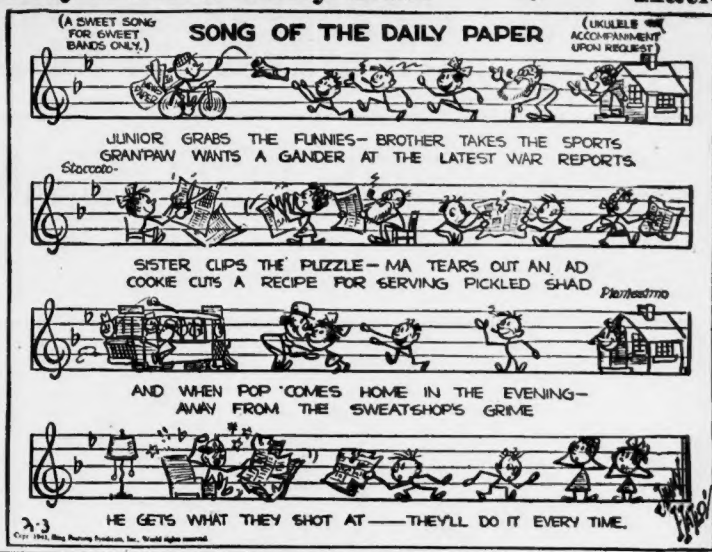

Manager "Red" Dutton labored under the impression that Frankie Brimsek was using an illegal stick. So he dispatched one of his hirelings out to have "King" Clancy measure it. "King" produced a tape measure and went into action. Then he skated to the opposite end of the rink and put the tape on Rayner's stick.

30,000 SEE SPORTS SHOW

Donn Fendler Inducted Into Penobscotts

A 14-year-old woodsman was the hero of New England's outdoor sports enthusiasts today.

Not even the imposing array of oldtimers, long time guides, or the 73-year-old fountain of philosophy himself, Whit Thompson, the Port Clyde sea captain, could take top honors away from Donn Fendler, the boy hero of America, as a tremendous record-breaking crowd of nearly 30,000 jammed Mechanics Building for the second day of the New England Sportmen's and Boat Show.

Midst pomp and ceremony fitting for a youngster who had already captured the imagination of the entire country by his bravery while lost for eight days in the wilds of Mt. Katahdin, young Donn Fendler was duly and impressively inducted as a full-fledged member of the Penobscott tribe of Indians.

To make the ceremony all the more imposing, Chief Needabbeh, an old crowd favorite from away back, conducted the investment himself.

The Chief of all Penobscotts personally wrapped the youngster in the tribal blanket of his Redmen, then crowned him with a head-dress, one which differed from his own only in size, and gave him the name of Little Partridge.

The official Penobscott name of Little Partridge was significant for, as the Chief explained, the partridge is famed for its ability to overcome the strictest hardships.

Thus New England's greatest indoor glorification of the out of doors, the Sportmen's and Boat Show, continued its merry whirl again while the huge sports-minded crowd familiarized itself with the array of sporting personalities.

PUTTING PAUL RUNYAN

Once again Paul Runyan, "Puttin' Paul," continued to amaze the fans with his wizardry and with the amount of information he could pack into the time allotted for his demonstration of golfing shots.

Capt. Jennier's trained seals were other prime favorites with the crowd.

More feats of exacting obedience were displayed when Ora H. Kale's English springer spaniels went "into the swim" to retrieve objects and incidentally give those nearest the pool a slight sprinkling.

The expert guides did their stuff as usual with the bait casting by Curly Moulton and Doc Wellman. Fly casting by Harry Scott, the art of surf casting as shown by Sumner Towne, and a demonstration of deep sea fishing by Maurice Hoffman, all widely recognized leaders in their fields, drawing repeated applause.

DOUBLE ROLL IN KAYAK

The exciting wood chopping, leg sawing log rolling and canoe tilting gave the crowd additional thrills as well, and a kind of canoe tilting never seen at any Sportmen's and Boat Show previous to this one, was a big hit when Carl Thionna, the little Eskimo from Dave Irwin's Eskimo Village, did a double roll over in his kayak—only to come up with a fish on the second complete turn.

"He Who Hesitates Is Lost"

Hesitation in seeking competent, trustworthy help, when your hair and scalp show the symptoms of approaching baldness, may cause you to be too late to save your hair. Thousands of men, including leaders in the business, professional and theatrical worlds, have saved and improved their hair through treatment by John E. Warner and Associates, and other hundreds have been rejected because they waited too long. Most sensible men know that baldness is a permanent condition—but 85% of baldness is due to local scalp conditions and can be corrected and checked by Warner's scientific treatment, if caught in time. If your scalp shows the symptoms of approaching baldness, such as an itchy or oily scalp—extreme dryness—and excessive loss of hair, you should, in the interest of your personal appearance, consult these famous hair specialists. There is no charge or obligation for a private examination and consultation, and no case is ever accepted for treatment unless beneficial results are reasonably certain. Treatment fees are exceptionally moderate. The offices of John E. Warner are conveniently located at 515 Washington St., opposite R. H. White's, near the corner of West St. Phone HUB. 1705—Suites 710-715—Hours 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. Daily, Saturday 10 A. M. to 6 P. M. There is a separate department for women. Treatments are always given in strict privacy. Adv.
